Kaede is a 17 year old girl that just finished high school. She's smart, pretty but got lose morals - not in that sense pervert. It's just that there are bigger problems in the world that scammers and mundane thief, with the monsters and like all other things, so why not help oneself? Kaede's newly budding power is related to space and time. However, she sucks at controlling it for now and barely qualified at a C level hero. She's able once every few minutes to perform a flash - short range (5 meters) teleport, for now leaving noise at entrance and exit as well as particle effects indicating a wise enemy where she went. She can also accelerate or decelerate things or people. Enough to dodge easily a baseball thrown at her, not enough to stop an arrow from tearing her a new one. Kaede scammed people online to get funds for her suit - one for now, other have been commissioned. This one increase her durability and weaponize her flash by allowing her to leave blades behind that can come back in their sheath. The scammed simp have evolved into the jumper squad. The apartment thing? Landlord had stopped asking for rent. Turns out the old perv died and Kaede was on the testament. It's good because situation with the parents is... complicated.

Squatted in the school for a couple of months and got one other student expelled.

Being an Esper is great and all, but there's a problem - people keep forgetting who you are and that you exist. Once they break eye contact, every single living being (except for other Espers or very rare cases) tends to forget you exist, even during a battle! Whatever it is, this phenomena might be tied to your strange Esper abilities. Shinon Watanabe was a normal person, growing up in a decent neighborhood and had the best education he could get. Sadly, he ended up as a white collar worker in a bland looking company, always tapping away at his computer with countless Excel data sheets. Until suddenly... people started to ignore him. It was odd at first, but Shinon decided to investigate - the entire office building kept on forgetting who he was! With enough time, Watanabe realized two things: one, he awakened esper abilities, two, his powers made people unaware of his presence. After experimenting with his powers, there was one useful thing at the end of the day - local monsters that appeared in his neighborhood had brief moments where they thought a harmless office worker was in front of them, but then he's gone? Talk about elusive, but that forced Watanabe to spend a lot of money on a highly experimental esper helmet - finally allowing people to dampen his memory loss abilities or intensify them... should an emergency happen.

	K-City Knights	Incorrectly nicknamed "Koach Kai" by Kaede
Kai is a 24 year old man whose build and beard make him look older than his age. He was raised in C-City by his grandfather Yu. He always had trouble at school, since he was the type to learn by doing instead of studying, so much so that he had to repeat his last years in middle school. He developed a fascination for martial arts when the Super Fight was established, and became a fan of its first winner, Gouketsu. He took to physical exercise with vigor, making great strides when compared to his normal education, so much so that his grandfather encouraged him to follow his dreams instead of accepting a future of maintaining the family's gardening shop. However, he did not expect Kai to take it with so much enthusiasm that he started his martial journey instead of entering high school. He joined multiple dojos, but never stayed for long or went far past the basics. He would always take spars too far or lack behind other students in regular training, and eventually would get kicked out, sometimes gently, other times more harshly. Eventually he built up a reputation as a undisciplined hothead in the martial arts community, and was no longer accepted. The few friends he made along the way, such as Master Min from Flying Tiger Claw, tried to help but it was not enough to counter the influence of others like Master Yang from Hidden Venom Fang, and because there was some truth behind them. This lead him to move to K-City, turning an abandoned gym inside of an overgrown part of the K-City Natural Park into his dojo, where he trained alone for 3 years until he decided to start his own school due to believing that isolation was starting to have dark thoughts of straying from the virtues he believe are key to a martial artist, to see student grow in their abilities and a desire to make the community that shunned him be made to recognize him as a fellow master.

Yono Nakano is the daughter of an ex-yakuza that left after his wife became pregnant and the front construction company started being more profitable than the illegal activities. She grew up hearing stories of those times told by her father's old friends. This romanticized notion of crime, plus being a hothead that believes that fists talk louder than words, led to her becoming a delinquent and earning the nickname of Blazing Yono. However, she is incredibly loyal and protective towards those she is close to or respects.

She is in the last year of high school, and formed a small gang called Blazing Hearts, claiming one of the neighborhoods near The Edge as her territory, which led her to joining Kai's dojo after a misunderstanding.

She has an older sister called Yuki, who is somewhat of an ice queen, and seemingly is better at everything. This created an inferiority complex and a need to prove herself, on top of a dislike to people she believes act haughty.

Yama was one of the better students in his Ninja Village but found himself at the wrong end of a conspiracy to punish him by several of his Lessers after he revealed to the Village that he had mastered several Ninja Techniques. He was lured into a trap and nearly killed before he managed to dispose of his assailants. Now hunted and pushed out from his village for the killings he had to run and ran into Doctor Kusigawa who offered safe him from death's door. But that was not the only thing the Doctor did. He transformed Yama into a Monster and gave him the Designation Yawann-230. The Mind Control Device however malfunctioned on the first Mission that he was sent out on and fried part of his brain. With severe Memory loss and the profound sense of loss he found himself on the streets of K-City. He had been equipped for Stealth Missions that might turn violent but now he was kinda lost wandering in his human guise and helping people that looked so similar to the face he saw reflected in buildings and puddles. His village thinks him dead and he barely remembers them however he knows where one of their hidden cabins would be that is next to never used. Did impromptu self surgery on his own brain and probably traumatized Kenichi after not cleaning up the mess he left behind rushing to Kaedes Help. Can use his own mass and energy to heal other people, temporarily granting them a copy of his regeneration ability.

A young woman barely 20 years old when she fell into the clutches of Doctor Kusigawa. In collaboration with one of his colleagues he turned her from a weak defenseless woman scared out of her mind into an emotionless killer. She was a good Hunter equipped with powerful Equipment. After extensive Refurbishments she has once again been set loose with the directive to bring back Yawann-320 dead or alive though alive is preferred. She has a Onetrack mind but sometimes the weak young scared woman still dances across her view making her wonder if this was truly all as worth it as the Doctor said. Got destroyed and called back to the Lab to be rebuilt better than ever before. Due to the time distortion there are now two of her. After a certain candy brand stopped production, its most dedicated fan vowed to make everyone realize their mistake, by force if necessary. His body is made of plastic, in the form of a man-height candy-wrapper with hairy legs (the legs are also plastic, though it's hard to tell at a glance). He can shoot skittles out of the opening at his top, but they don't actually deal much damage. If eaten in large quantities, someone could get addicted to them. Skittler can quickly heal damage, but it's only practical outside of battle and he needs to consume sweets and plastic as fuel. Maybe he could evolve more if given the right stimulus. Skittler is fairly hard to kill, both his peculiar physiology and avoidance of serious battles allow him to worm his way out of many predicaments. One candy-wrapper against the cold, uncaring world. But the power of Skittles is all I need! All of those ignorant fools will eat crow, after they taste the rainbow of course! These humans made a grave mistake! Now that the last of the skittles belong to me, it is only through me that they may taste the rainbow Sees Yama and Kaede as complete and utter Psychos and will try to avoid getting into a fight with them. Got his ass kicked by Veggie-man after assaulting Yuki Nakano. Not all ninjas are from the Ninja Village, only the best ones (just don't let them hear you say that). Before HE was even born, there were plenty of ninjutsu traditions, and while many were destroyed by the new competitors, others survived (or were spared), either by luck, skill, or simply not being enough of a threat.

The Kusamono Clan is one such case, a family that can trace its ancestry to generations of shinobi and kunoichis, protecting a small and remote land while taking contracts. Kowa and Dowa are the twin children of the clan elder, always competing to see which will inherit the title, but being fiercely loyal to each other. They see the destruction of the Ninja Village as an opportunity to rebuild the lost influence of their clan, and maybe even to discover some new secret techniques.

K-City Hero Association

This local contractor is a mystery: monster or cyborg? What matters is that this C-Class Hero is mainly a S-Class army knife when it comes to public work: the colossal assemblage of metal and flesh could morph into various contraptions; excavator, road roller, concrete mixer, lift truck, his potential is impressive. No wonder he works harder on his mundane job than his Hero career: no one else seems to fill this niche in K city.
