

I can feel the winds of the open Oklahoma prairie blowing at the back of my blonde locks of hair. It feels nice though as it is a soft, gentle wind. While it's quite warm, the humidity does not bother me all that much. Maybe it is the fact that I am wearing white and silver that both shine and sparkle in the sunlight. Or maybe it is the fact that I feel refreshed to be out in the open air, where a young pixie is destined to be. Whatever it is, I definitely do not want this good aura to leave me. I will fight to the death in order to keep it, because I know that in the end it will not help just me, but it will help others around me.

Case in point, Katie Steward. I approached her long-time associate TJ Johnson and told him the truth. Katie is so much more than just the Goddess she has been made out to be. She showed it years ago, or so I have heard. That Katie needs to be woken up because being completely honest, I don't see her name on the marquees. I don't see her being the star she and TJ believe she is. Straight to TJ, I have nothing against Katie. If I did, well, I would have made it obvious. I came to you with only good intentions. Just trust me.

Alas, I guess I will try to get through to TJ and Katie when I can. I know tonight I have an interesting test in Derek Adonis, and well, I have to be honest here. He was tired of being a laughingstock here and I don't blame him for going off his rocker. But I fear he may have gone a step too far with spreading the gospel that he has been airing. As much of a big man as he is, and as much as he could probably sit on me and damage my wings, I feel that he too could be so much better than what he has become. Maybe that is why we have been thrown together tonight Derek. You and I are both similar in a way, both needing big changes in our lives. However the difference comes in the point that I want to be better and help others. Meanwhile you want people to listen to you and your words.

Listening to what you have to say is something I will simply just not do. If I do, nothing good would come of it, and I really don't want to find myself reverting back to...

No. I am here to help in any way I can. If I have to kick it into you Derek to wake you up and realize that you can be an honorable man without spreading propaganda, I will do just that. But I have made a promise to myself and to the world that I will not go too far. So... after tonight, no matter what happens, I wish you luck in your future endeavors. The only thing I ask is that you go forth as a better man than you are at this very moment. You will then feel as I do right now. Cleansed, refreshed, and ready to make a difference.

I'm Purity Pixie and I'll see you tonight in that ring Derek. For right now besides trying to improve yourself, that's all you and the rest of the world needs to know. I'm a good woman. I know I am. And I really, REALLY want to do nothing but positive things, not just for myself, but for anyone who cares to be the best that they can be.