Exercise 1:

Instructions:

In this exercise you have to answer the question "Why is it true?" on given burdens. Often, to be considered a proven burden, you will need more than 1 reason why. Most of the analysis given in this exercise look for 3 reasons that are correct, some for 5. If you can think of more than the number of attempts, feel free to do so.

Often in debates, the arguments may vary in different forms, but their main burdens remain the same. This paper brings together some of the fundamental questions found in almost every debate. Exercise: Why is it so important to have famous and rich figures from poor areas? (3) 1. 2. 3. Why does close contact between minorities and the majority reduce racism? (3) 1. 2. 3. Are there structural barriers that prevent poor people from managing their finances well? (3) 1. 2. 3. Why is the state more effective in protecting nature than NGOs? (3) 1. 2. 3. Why do tax cuts increase jobs? (3) 1. 2. 3. Why does religion make people happy? (3) 1.

-!
2.3.
Why does prison make people more hardened criminals? (3) 1. 2. 3.
Why does the middle class fight authoritarian regimes best? (3) 1. 2. 3.
Why is the threat of a lawsuit a good preventive mechanism? (3) 1. 2. 3.
Why don't schools in low-income areas provide a good education? (5) 1. 2. 3. 4. 5.