New research suggests that people who live close to the ocean or sea are happier. Researchers from the University of Exeter in the UK say people who live in coastal areas have better mental health than people who live inland. This is for rich people and poor people. The researchers looked at data from surveys of 25,963 people. The surveys asked people questions about their happiness, lifestyle and income. The researchers found that those who live within one kilometer of the coast are 22 per cent less likely to show any signs of mental health problems. People who lived more than 50 kilometers from the coast had more symptoms of mental health problems. They found that poorer people living within sight of the coast were around 40 per cent less likely to have mental health symptoms than those who lived inland.

HOGMANAY

In Scotland, the biggest celebration of the year is 'Hogmanay'. Hogmanay is the Scottish word for New Year's Eve. On 31st December in Edinburgh, there is an enormous firework display at the castle, and they play live music in the park. Thousands of people gather in the streets, cafes and bars. Then, at 12 o'clock, church bells ring all over the city.

After midnight, people go 'first footing'. This is a Scottish custom that dates back hundreds of years. First footing is visiting your neighbours after midnight on New Year's Eve. The visitors must step into the house with their right foot first, to bring good luck. Traditionally the visitors bring three gifts: a piece of coal, a piece of 'shortbread' (Scottish biscuit) and a little whisky. The gifts symbolize warmth, food and happiness. If the first person who visits your home after midnight is a man with dark hair, that is particularly lucky!

36. What does the word "Hogmanay" mean?

37. Where do they play live music on New Year's Eve?

38. When do people go 'first footing'?

39. What do the gifts symbolise?

40. What kind of first visitor is especially lucky?
