Indira Everett joined Duke Energy in July 2012 after its merger completion with Progress Energy where she is now into her 31st year with the company. Effective December 31, 2012, Indira was promoted to District Manager for Duke Energy in the Government and Community Relations department serving Chatham, Durham, Lee and Orange counties. She continues to serve in this role as she manages governmental and key contact relationships with regulatory officials, local elected officials, chambers, and community and civic leaders. Additionally, she also implements community and customer strategies that achieve enhanced customer satisfaction and strengthens regulatory relationships while also managing philanthropic grants and sponsorships for her district.

Indira has always been very engaged in the community serving as a board of director member of the Chatham Chamber of Commerce, Durham's Downtown Development Inc., Durham Technical Community College Foundation, and Durham Chamber of Commerce Legacy Foundation. She is currently the Chair of the Chatham Chamber of Commerce and past Chair of the Durham Chamber of Commerce board. Her civic engagement also includes serving on the Central Carolina Community College's Central Carolina Works Advisory Committee, Durham Rotary Club Innovation Fellows Advisory Committee, NC Business Committee for Education, and Wake Chapel Church Trustee boards. Previously, she served on other diverse boards including the Chapel Hill/Carrboro Chamber of Commerce, Durham Public Schools Business Advisory Council, Hillsborough Chamber of Commerce, TreesDurham, Research Triangle Regional Partnership (RTRP) and Durham Public Schools Foundation, National Black Caucus of State Legislators (NBCSL) Corporate Roundtable, Triangle Urban League, Raleigh Chamber Executive Women, and Kids Voting.

She has received numerous awards and recognitions including the Wendell-Wake NAACP Humanitarian of the Year, Raleigh-Durham Who's Who Nomination and the NC Black Women's Empowerment Network's Unsung Hero Award. She has completed leadership programs including Leadership North Carolina, the Chapel-Hill/Carrboro Executive Leadership Fellows program, Leadership Triangle, and the Raleigh, Sanford and Chatham Chambers of Commerce Leadership Programs. Her leadership influence will continue as the recently elected President-Nominee of the Durham Rotary Club. Indira has a degree in Political Science from N.C. State University and a post-graduate certification as a Legal Assistant (paralegal) from Meredith College, both in Raleigh, NC.

Indira is happily married to her best friend, Roosevelt Everett, and they reside in Durham, NC.
