Synopsis:

An Arabic prince sets out to find a genie lamp, to save his sister and his home from an overwhelming enemy. The prince goes through numerous perils through an ancient dungeon and gets the lamp hidden at the end. A blue haired genie comes forth. However, more traps are triggered at the activation of the lamp, which the prince navigates through without using any wishes as to not waste them. The Genie gives a small helping hand at one point, and they make it to safety. Because of the genie rules and the magic interference from the enemy, she can't solve the problem for him. However, it is possible for him to be granted power in order to save his people on his own. The prince devises a complicated wish to gain the power to reverse time (with various rules and using a checkpoint based system). The prince then selflessly uses his last wish to set the genie free. Because of his noble quest and the small bond already formed, the Genie decides to accompany the man on his quest to save his kingdom.
