AP-Large-Influx-Of-Drugs-At-Border BULLETIN

Jonathan Goodman (center) and assisting DEA agents with seized narcotics.

(PRESIDIO, Tx) -- The Drug Enforcement Agency has noticed a large increase in fentanyl and cocaine related deaths. The DEA is currently working with US Customs and Border Patrol to identify the possible trafficking routes from South America. "We are actively working with other agencies to combat the increased trafficking coming through South America" DEA Agent, Johnathan Goodman.
