

Recess Drama by Damian

On Friday 3/2/23, a student standing near the basketball court had an electronic in their backpack broken by another student playing basketball. The student threw the basketball, which hit the rim of the hoop and caused the backpack to crack the electronic. The victim, A: the suspect, H. I interviewed A and she declared "People think that the basketball hit the rim and it hit the Ipad which is not true. I said that my Ipad was in my backpack, and when I said that he proceeded to throw the basketball at my backpack." On the other hand, I asked H and he mentioned "So I was playing basketball and it hit the rim of the court and it hit the Ipad, but the screen was already cracked but, A is trying to blame me". I asked a student what they thought, "I think that if something valuable was in there it's A's fault.". I asked a student what they thought "H is in the wrong", while yet another student said "some people are trying to protect H and are blaming her" .

Summary: Don't bring your electronics to school!
