

Connecticut deer hunt has big upside in small package November 10, 2017

Meriden Record-Journal

... In 1990, a change was made giving shotgun hunters first crack at the firearms hunting season for deer. One of the reasons was that they would be less “buck selective,” and this proved to be true. In 1991, Connecticut was second only to Maine in deer harvest. Connecticut’s total of 11,305 was 14 percent over the 1990 take...
