Are you looking for the best road trip from Munich? You want to take your vacation from the city for all it has to offer.

Bavaria is famous for many things, including its natural beauty and rich cultural history. There are many places you can visit while on a road trip from Munich.

However, that doesn't mean it's easy to decide which ones are worth including on your itinerary. You have different options depending on how long you want to spend on your trip and the activities you want to do.

Some people prefer staying in an urban area while others desire more scenic views (and probably fewer tourists). Once you have these things in mind, here are our recommendations for the ultimate road trip itinerary from Munich:

1. Füssen: A stop on the way to Innsbruck

The city of Füssen is about two-and-a-half hours from Munich by car. During your Munich road trip, it's worth stopping in Füssen to see the Residenz, a UNESCO World Heritage site. You can also take a trip to nearby Neuschwanstein Castle, which was King Ludwig II's inspiration for building his own castle.

The difference between the two is striking. Füssen is a great place to break up your drive to Innsbruck and experience some of southern Germany's natural beauty. The city is a must-visit, whether on a road trip from Munich or an Austria tour itinerary. If you want to go all out for a day trip, you can take a tour from Munich to Füssen.

It's a great way to see both castles and travel between two cities. If you prefer to drive, you will find parking spaces near both of the castles.

2. Lake Starnberg and Munich's Museums District

The city of Munich has plenty of natural beauty to explore. According to research, the city saw more than 164,000 tourist arrivals in February 2022.

You can't miss Lake Starnberg while you're in the area. It's a large lake situated just west of central Munich.

You should also visit the famous Deutsches Museum, which houses over 2,000 exhibits and has a planetarium. If you're into history and science, it is a place you won't want to miss.

Another great thing to do is wander around the city's Museums District. It's home to the world's largest collection of art museums.

3. Rothenburg ob der Tauber

Rothenburg ob der Tauber is one of Germany's most famous towns and it is worth a visit on any road trip from Munich. It's a great place to experience the country's rich cultural history. While you're there, you can also visit the town's world-famous Christmas market in December or its castle, which is open all year round.

You can take a walk through the infamous "Wall Street" of the Middle Ages, where people were once hanged for minor offenses. This wall is now covered in writing and graffiti, giving a modern twist to the landmark.

Rothenburg ob der Tauber is a great place to spend a few hours, and it's near other cool places like Nuremberg and Würzburg. You can book a guided tour of Rothenburg with us.

4. Romantic Road & the German Wine Route

The Romantic Road is the most famous road trip route in Germany, and it's located about two hours from Munich. There are many charming towns along the way, and you can easily spend a few days visiting them all.

For example, you can visit Wurzburg, where you can experience the German wine route literally and metaphorically. You can visit the vineyards and taste the wine, or participate in other activities offered in the area.
