ISTE NETs for Students: Digital Citizenship=LEADERSHIP!

Students understand human, cultural, and societal issues related to technology and practice legal and ethical behavior.

INSERT A COMMENT ABOUT HOW YOU SEE THIS AT YOUR SCHOOL SITE.

a. Advocate and practice safe, legal, and responsible use of information and technology

I teach this using online discussion platforms.

b. Exhibit a positive attitude toward using technology that supports collaboration, learning, and productivity

-Students blog about what they are learning in the classroom, as part of the unit we discuss how commenting can become a digital 'conversation,' how the work they post online becomes public and so should reflect their best ideas, most thoughtful attention, etc.

c. Demonstrate personal responsibility for lifelong learning

We have joined Project Learn365 and started the Leyden Learn365 blog where a different student or teacher shares a reflection of their learning each day. (Jason Markey)

d. Exhibit leadership for digital citizenship

We are including students in our social media taskforce.

I teach these topics using virtual worlds - online responsibility and safety.

Google Tool	Are you using it at your School?	What digital citizenship expectations do you have in place for it?	What issues do you see?
Docs	Not really Students write collaboratively. Yes, for collaborative research and writing. We use it for group projects and for sharing work with teachers to go paperless Can't live without it Use for everything and students have parents using it	Digital Etiquette (students need to know what is acceptable to write when using a Doc) Being respectful and sharing ideas. All must participate Keeping chat on task.	Students not "getting" the way that collaboration can lead to an innovative project Government is hesitant (they use sharepoint)

Gmail/Chat/Plus	No, haven't quite figured out how to keep track of it. gmail Yes, Gmail and starting to use Plus and Chat Yes - Gmail Yes, gmail is internal only but advocating for full acess
YouTube	Yes Yes. Also, they upload to private channels when finished with iMovie on iPad. video tutorials using Camtasia Youtube is not blocked and is used frequently I make videos for the kids to watch at home--flipped classroom Some students have their own YouTube channel Youtube is a core component for project based learning initiatives.	I encourage my students to use the education site -- they are using videos as resources, not posting their own YouTube is blocked at my school, but they can access using https, teaching the wrong lesson, that they can/have to hack the system It is blocked at my site also, but I'd like to try to get this changed Students have access to YouTube on their iPads. They are to be on it when they're allowed to, and not when not supposed to. (We had to block the app. It was too tempting. But the website is still allowed. Somehow, less tempting?) Students submit their work and set the access to "unlisted", submit the link via Googleform	Always a concern that they will stumble upon inappropriate content. We teach them to be responsible in closing these tabs but the bigger issue for me is how to help them control their search
Sites	Yes! All our 6th through 12th grade students create Digital Portfolios using Google Sites. Works very well! Student product design teams are creating sites to promote their work I am having my EdTech College students start their professional portfolios in sites We keep all the Teacher PD on Google Sites for them to refer to throughout the year
