My vocaloid youtube playlist order

Welcome to my long ass list of vocaloid songs! I'm a masochist and decided I needed to organize my playlist alphabetically so this list helps me/others keep track of my filing system.

YouTube playlist (should have all the songs featured on this list) ->

FAQ

McKenzie. Why. Just why

The short answer is that I'm neurodivergent with a hyperfixation on these silly little voicebanks that has persisted since middle school. The long answer is that I briefly fell out of my hyperfixation once entering high school, but Project Diva Megamix on the switch got me back into it. And on Diva, the songs are organized alphabetically. Something about that organization method flipped a switch in my brain, because when I initially put the playlist together I just followed how it was on the game and just. Couldn't stop myself once I'd started fdklfsajlskfj

Can you add (insert song here)?

Maybe! If I like the song decently enough then there's a good chance I'll at least put it on my YouTube playlist, but due to soundcloud's song limit I'll probably only add it if I really like the song myself

Organization Notes

- I use an alphabetizer to organize all my songs. Due to how long this list has gotten over the years, I can't be bothered to go through it myself anymore. If something's out of order than feel free to let me know, but otherwise I Cannot Be Bothered

- If there are multiple covers of a song on my playlist, those will be alphabetized as well. For example, Araki comes before Gakupo who comes before Kaito and so on
 - Exceptions to this rule: If it's a project sekai cover (I suppose I could still alphabetize it if I put it by group name/character name, but I haven't had multiple project sekai covers yet so I feel like that's just more work. I usually just put these covers underneath all the others, so for example if a song has a miku and len cover linked, the project sekai will be under both of those); If it's a cover by the same vocaloid but is tuned differently (the cover will just go right under the original, for example rishie-p's covers usually go right underneath the original)
- Sometimes a song's placement on the list will depend on the title. If it's only listed in Japanese on YouTube, for example, there's a good chance I'll put it organized accordingly (for example, Kimi wa dekinai ko by Kikuo is listed under the K's, as opposed to in the Y's as "You are a worthless child"). This also applies to songs where I personally know them as one title instead of another (for example, daughter of evil and servant of evil are both listed under the A's as aku no musume and aku no meshitsukai respectively because that's just how I knew them on Project Mirai—they've always been in the A's and I don't plan on changing that any time soon). The alternate title will usually be listed next to it for convenience—makes it easier when you're using command f to search for a song lmao
- There are a small handful of songs that start with A (for example, A Realistic Logical Ideologist) that are instead listed under the next letter in their title—in the case of the example, that song is listed under the R's—but doesn't apply to most others (for example, A Fake, Fake Psychotropic is where it should be). I know this is inconsistent but I really really can't be bothered to fix it. If it starts bothering me more than it already does then I'll probably fix it, but for now if you can't find a song under the A's then check for the next letter after it jfaskljf
