[ARTICLE TITLE: MAXIMUM 15 WORDS]

Abstract

[Write a single-paragraph abstract of 200-250 words. Briefly state the research background, objective, method, principal findings, and conclusion. Do not include citations, footnotes, tables, figures, or undefined abbreviations.]

Keywords: [keyword one; keyword two; keyword three; keyword four; keyword five]

1. INTRODUCTION

[Explain the background and significance of the study, relevant legal or institutional context, state of the literature, research gap, research question or objective, novelty, and expected contribution. Use APA 7th Edition in-text citations, for example: Author (2025) or (Author, 2025).]

[Write the Introduction here.]

2. RESEARCH METHODS

[Identify the research design and approach; sources of legal materials or data; collection techniques; analytical method; and ethical considerations. Doctrinal research should identify the statutory, conceptual, case, comparative, historical, or other approach used. Empirical research should explain participants, sampling, instruments, data collection, and analysis. A systematic review should state the databases, search terms, screening process, inclusion and exclusion criteria, and synthesis method.]

[Write the Research Methods here.]

3. RESULTS

[Present the principal findings clearly and systematically. For doctrinal or conceptual research, explain the legal findings, doctrinal propositions, regulatory inconsistencies, institutional problems, or conceptual developments identified by the study.]

3.1. [First Results Subheading]

[Present the relevant findings here. Add or remove subheadings as needed.]

Table 1. [Concise Table Title]

No.	Category/Variable	Finding/Description
1	[Insert category or variable]	[Insert concise finding or description]

Note. Explain abbreviations and identify the source. Tables must be editable and cited in the text.

[Insert high-resolution figure here]

Note. Identify the source and any required permission. Every figure must be discussed in the text.

4. DISCUSSION

[Interpret and critically analyse the findings. Relate them to legislation, judicial decisions, theories, and previous scholarship; explain the novelty and contribution; discuss legal, institutional, governance, policy, or societal implications; and state the limitations and future research directions. Do not merely repeat the Results section.]

4.1. [First Discussion Subheading]

[Write the analysis and discussion here. Add or remove subheadings as needed.]

5. CONCLUSION

[Answer the research question directly and summarise the principal findings. State any justified legal, institutional, or policy recommendations. Do not introduce new evidence, arguments, or references.]

[Write the Conclusion here.]

DECLARATIONS

Acknowledgements: [Insert acknowledgements after acceptance. During review, include them only in the separate Title Page file, or state: Not applicable.]

Funding: [State the funder and grant number, or: This research received no external funding.]

Author Contributions: [Describe each author's contribution, for example using the CRediT roles where appropriate.]

Conflict of Interest: [State any conflict, or: The authors declare no conflict of interest.]

Ethics Approval: [Provide the approving body and reference number for human-participant research, or state: Not applicable.]

Data Availability: [State where supporting data may be accessed and any restrictions, or state: Not applicable.]

REFERENCES

[Use APA 7th Edition and arrange entries alphabetically. Apply a hanging indent. Include at least 20 scholarly references; at least 30% should have been published within the preceding five years, except for foundational works and primary legal materials. Ensure that every in-text citation appears in the References and vice versa. Include an active DOI or permanent URL where available. The examples below are formatting models and must be replaced with the sources actually cited.]
