

Population Summary in the Estates of the Rohatyn District in the Halicz Land of His Grace
Castellan of Cracow, the Crown's Great Hetman¹, 7th of December 1710

Occupation²	Rohatyn	Babince	Podwinie
Village Elder	1
Village Elder's Wife	1
Christian Burghers (men)	225
Christian Burghers (women)	253
Peasant householders (men)		74	15
Peasant householders (women)		92	15
Jewish leaseholders (men)	3
Jewish leaseholders (women)	4
Jewish Burghers (men)	103
Jewish Burghers (women)	108
Apprentices	20
Farm hands	52	26	3
Cooks/Inn keepers (women)	65/18	3/0
Orthodox priests/and their wives	2/2	3/3
Millers/and their wives	4/4
Vineyard workers/and their wives	12/12
Jewish cooks (women)	2
Jewish tenant farmers (men/women)	25/27
Polish tenant farmers (men/women)	26/31	3/4

Note:

Rohatyn (Rohatyn town, Babince, and the Podwinie estate belonging to the parish): population 1,243. The town of Rohatyn only: population 1,000, including 272 Jews (27.2%).

The district of Rohatyn (which also included the following villages: Czercze,, Potok, Podgrodzie,, Ruda,, Kleszczówna,, Wierzbiewice, Załuże): population 1,730, including 282 Jews (16.3%).³

¹ Refers to Count Adam Mikołaj Sieniawski, the owner of the Rohatyn district.

² Occupations are entered ad verbatim from the records.

³ "*" denotes the villages outside the town of Rohatyn where the Jewish leaseholders and burghers resided in 1710.