

Dirty Rotten Scoundrel Through and Through

Well, I have to admit, after having what many have considered to be one of the greatest careers in the history of professional wrestling, I never thought I would be expressing myself to all of you in this vein again, but yet here we are. I am talking to you before my match at the Dogfight in Dusseldorf, the next pay-per-view Full disclosure, and I really don't care who might be offended by this, but I never wanted to step inside of a wrestling ring again, at least not as an active competitor. I am 47 years-old and I survived a severe stroke 8 and a half years ago. Nevermind the fact that I never wanted to become a in ring wrestler again, the truth of the matter is, I probably shouldn't get back in the ring either boys and girls. Trust me when I tell you that I wouldn't have any problem finding a doctor who would agree with that if I asked.

So, I haven't asked, because I don't want to hear the answer, don't want to be told that one wrong move and I could be spending the rest of my life in a wheelchair, at best. Because there is someone that has forced me into a corner, forced return to the ring. He never gave me any alternative. That is the only way that I can ensure that he will get the retribution that he deserves for what he did to me and the people that I love, isn't that right, Ryan?

Yeah, I am talking to you and about you Ryan Francis Lyman, the twin that I never told anyone about in SCW. That was my big mistake I guess. I should have told everyone about you right from the beginning, that way, you never could have gotten away with what you have for over a year and a half. What did you get away with? Oh we will circle back around to that believe me. I have a lot to say, and I am going to make sure that I get to all of it, because I have earned that much with all that I have been through.

Ironically though, when we talk about this match, I have to start with you, don't I Alex? It is amazing to me how much a man who is in the position that you are can so blatantly abuse his power and not even care what the repercussions will be. Just so long as you get revenge for what? You still can't live with the fact that 12 years ago, on the biggest stage in wrestling, a stage you undoubtedly helped create, I beat you. It has been eating away at you every single day of your life since that time if what you have done is any indication. You abused your authority so much that now I will be partnering in this tag team match with the same man who held me captive in a basement for over a year and a half.

So I am going to do you a favor, Alex, because I am to give you the opportunity that you and I both know that most competitors in this industry only dream of; I am going to give you a second chance. I am not going to pretend even for a moment that I know your age, nor do I care, because I also am know fool and I know that if you wanted to you would be more than capable of handling yourself in the ring more time, and so I am going to give the opportunity to prove just that. I don't want this to get misconstrued though, Alex, I am not challenging you to a match. Rather I am just putting my cards on the table and saying if you want the chance to have another match with me, I am not a hard person to find. You name the time, you name the place and I will be there, old man. I am interested in your response, if you even have one.

Right now though, I am going to pivot, and talk about a match I currently have on the horizon, which means I am talking about this cluster of a tag team match in Dusseldorf. In one respect, I will say that it is a real honor. I have not performed in Germany in over 20 years and yet here I will be here on Sunday, January 26. Germany has some of the most raucous and most intelligent fans that I have ever had the privilege of wrestling in front of, so this will be an honor. But, we all know why Supreme Championship Wrestling will be in Dusseldorf this weekend so let me just say this; Best of luck to you, Konrad. We haven't always seen eye to eye, but I know how much it means to have the opportunity to chase the World Title in a place that you can call home. There is nothing like it, so I really hope that you soak it all in and cherish the moment because you do deserve it.

What I will be doing however? That is another story, or precisely a few different stories. Take Andrew Raynes, for example. Andrew hates the very thought of me, or anybody named Lyman really, which is where the whole cluster gets so skewed for him because he doesn't care whether it was myself or my brother that has been doing things to him; he sees both red when he sees either of us. Andrew, I don't know why I would ever think that this would work because clearly where my family is involved you are governed by your emotions before your intelligence, but just stop and think about this for a second, ok. I retired in 2017, 7 and a half years ago. I didn't want to do this anymore and I told the world as much. I was walking with a damn cane more often than not when I wasn't in the ring. For that matter, I still have days away from the ring where I walk with a cane! ‘

You are one of the most ruthless and dangerous men in the entire world, Andrew. Why would I, even if I wanted to come back to the ring, which I do not, would I choose to piss you off? There is absolutely no benefit for me in that whatsoever, understand? Make no mistake, when my brother Ryan and face you and my friend Gavin Taylor, if you think that I will stand in the middle of the ring passively and just let you run me down without putting up any resistance you will find yourself sadly mistaken. Ain't as good as I once was Andrew, and I won't pretend otherwise because that would be an insult to both of us if I even tried. But if you want to tangle you will find out that I can still be as good once as I ever was. Or to put it another way for you, there has been a lot of bullshit going around about me recently because of my brother, and sometimes when you mess with the bull, you get the horns, Andrew.

Then we get to Andrew's partner in the whole fantastic cluster, my friend, Gavin Taylor. Other than my brother, who I should have strangled in the womb if I had gotten the opportunity, nobody in SCW has known me longer than you, Gavin. We have been through a lot together, no doubt. He has told anyone that would or wouldn't listen for as long as I can remember that he, Gavin Taylor, was the perfect wrestler. The perfect baseball player, the perfect soccer player, the perfect hockey, the perfect underwater basket weaver. Oh I could go on really, but what would be the point when everybody already gets the point. Gavin Taylor was, and I'm sure according to him still is the perfect professional athlete.

There have been times that I found you to be one of the most annoying people on the planet, just as I am sure that you could say the same thing about me. But everything changed on August 14th of last year. I haven't talked about it publicly until now, but August 14th of last year was the day that Gavin Taylor literally saved my life. Because if he hadn't found me, and rescued me from that basement? I am pretty sure that Ryan would have enjoyed nothing more than to let me rot slowly, once that he had got as much amusement as possible with his sick and twisted games. So I am going to say this, Gavin, from the bottom of my heart, thank you so much for being a true friend to me. I got my life, got my friends and family back, because of you, and will be spending the rest of my days trying to repay, and that still won't be enough. I don't have any idea what you and I are going to do about Andrew, but I do know that I will not be placing a hand on you, my friend.

But there is no doubt what I am going to you, my brother, Ryan Francis Lyman. This has to be the time of your pathetic excuse for a life, because for as long as I can remember, going back to even when we were children, you have always wanted to have all of the attention, all of everyone focus to be squarely upon you, and now you have got just that. Nevermind, that I am going to beat you within an inch of your life, something that I should have done a long time ago, the whole world is going to be talking about you. Honestly from what I have heard the whole world has already been talking about you for right around 2 years, right? Though I wonder how it makes you feel that it took stealing my identity and making everyone think that you were Simon Lyman doing horrible, unspeakable things to people that matter to me, to finally have everybody talking about what you were doing.

Because while yes, it was you doing those despicable things that people were talking about, they didn't know you were doing it. Have it stopped and really considered that for a second, because I have Ryan. I have been thinking about that for a lot longer than just a second if we are honest. Ryan Lyman, having his biggest victory, destroying the name and reputation of his brother, and yet in order to do so, you had to remain anonymous, didn't you? Talk about irony right? I have to admit to almost being slightly amused by the whole thing because you really achieved nothing for yourself, but then my slight amusement turns to red hot anger when I think of everything that I have been told that you did to people I love in my name!

Let's start with my daughter, your niece, Angelina. No, you didn't do anything to Angel physically and you had certain better glad that is the case because if you had, I have no doubt I would have killed you when I got the opportunity. I still want to, but I won't and you can point to the fact that you didn't touch my child as a big reason why. But you did make her think that I had become so rotten to people that she cares that she decided that her only recourse was to cut me completely out of her life. My child was 12 years old when you started all of your bullshit. I missed her first birthday as a teenager, something that we can never replace, and something that I will ever be able to forgive you for, not that I was going to try. The bond of a father and his daughter is irreplaceable Ryan, something that you don't know but I do and stole that bond from me and more importantly you stole that from my daughter.

You stole so much from me though, didn't you? That's what you wanted to, to steal things from me, but what you somehow seemed to have forgotten is one very important point about me. See, I don't actually care what you do to me. I can take that because I have always taken that for as long as we have been alive, right? I was the favorite whipping boy of our father but how many times did you do something that should have incurred his wrath and you didn't because I took the blame for you. That was ok with me, and to be perfectly honest that is still ok with me. I took so many beatings for you because I loved you damn it Ryan!

It didn't matter to you, did it? You would just smile and laugh whenever you used to peek around the corner while he was about to give me the belt, usually for things that you did. You were always damn jealous and wanted whatever I had, and you still want what I have only now that is going to cost you. I'm not even going to talk about what things that it could cost you legally, things that you did to Nadine and Amy, who thought you were me at the time. No, like I said we are not going to discuss what happened there because I have more respect for the two of them than you have for anyone or anyone has had for you either I would bet.

Don't think for even a second that just because I am not going to discuss what you did to two women that are so special to me, one that is the love of my life and the other who is one of my very best friends, you will not pay for what you did to the two of them. You will, and it will start this weekend believe me. And how you confused Donovan too, I will....on second thought, no, you know Donovan, and Donovan knows you too. I will let Donovan deal with you however he chooses, whenever he chooses and I will enjoy watching you squirm because you never know when he might becoming but one thing you can be sure of as any professional wrestler that wrestled during his career can tell you is Donovan Kayl always gets his receipts, something that has not changed just because he is retired.

And you have a lot of receipts to pay back, don't you brother, which is going to make this weekend that much more interesting. I do need to apologize though in advance because although we are scheduled to be tag team partners, I am going to tell everyone right now that will simply not be happening, and you understand this better than anyone, right Ryan? You kept me prisoner in the basement of our childhood home for over a year! Nobody knows tag team wrestling like I do, I have been a 17-time world tag team champion in my career. You can't expect to be someone's tag team partner, when can't trust them and I can't trust you Ryan, but more importantly for you to think about going into Dusseldorf, when we will not be partner but we will be on the same side of the ring is, Ryan you can't trust me either. I didn't want to wrestle ever again, but I can hardly wait to get to Dusseldorf because I promise everyone, whatever does happen, it will be just the start for you, my brother!