Introduction

Text can be written in Indonesian or English. The manuscript submitted to the editors must be the final manuscript in MS Word format that has been adapted to the writing guidelines and styles of the Elkawnie journal so that the manuscript can be directly displayed and printed. For example, (Kowalski, 2014). When more than one reference is cited within the same sentence, please format the citation as follows (Ngolemasango et al., 2003; Roberts, 1988).

Prepare your text at least six pages and a maximum of 14 pages (if possible and the editor agrees based on considerations of scientific development that are considered important, more pages are permitted), including references.

ولا يجوز أن يكون عني نظر الانتظار لأن النظر إذا ذكر مع ذكر الوجه فمعناه نظر العينين اللتين في الوجه كما إذا ذكر أهل اللسان نظر القلب فقالوا : " انظر في هذا الأمر بقلبك " لم يكن معناه نظر العينين وكذلك إذا ذكر النظر مع الوجه لم يكن معناه نظر الإنتظار الذي يكون للقلب وأيضا فإن نظر الإنتظار لا يكون في الجنة لأن الانتظار معه تنغيص وتكدير وأهل الجنة في ما لا عين رأت ولا أذن سمعت من العيش السليم والنعيم المقيم

Provide the meaning of ":" translated into English (or Latin).

The number of references should be at least 15 articles, with a minimum of five years from the year of submission. At least 50% of the cited references must be from recent publications.

Methods

Provide sufficient details to enable the reproduction of the work, including information on materials, instrumentation, and procedures.

Materials

Please provide details on the manufacturer and purity of the materials used (e.g., H_2SO_4, 98% purity, Merck, Germany). This subsection should be presented as a paragraph consisting of several complete sentences.

Instrumentation

The identification of the instruments used should be included in this section. The manufacturer and model (e.g., Perkin Elmer UV-Vis Spectrophotometer) must be specified. This subsection should be written as a paragraph consisting of several complete sentences.

Procedure

Methods already published should be indicated with a reference; only relevant modifications should be described.

Sub procedure

For theoretical or computational works, this Methodology may be modified into Computational Details, including the Software, Algorithms, Equations, etc. It is not necessary to include the Materials or Instruments for a sole theoretical/computational work.

Results and Discussion

The findings should be presented in this section. The actual results and discussion must be supported by schemes, figures, graphs, tables, reactions, and equations, all of which should be clearly numbered. Schemes, chemical structures, and graphs must be prepared using ChemDraw, Origin, or other similar software.

All tables and figures must include a title or caption and a legend to ensure they are self-explanatory. Furthermore, equations should be written using the Equation Editor. Graphs, diagrams, or curves generated in Excel must be inserted in an editable format. All figures and tables should be appropriately cited within the discussion.

Font size and format, as shown in Table 1, with the letters Times New Roman.

Equation

If you use MS Word, use the Microsoft Equation Editor or MathType equation and are given an equation number starting from (1), (2), etc. For numerals, a "comma" is a punctuation mark for thousands, and a "dot" for a decimal.

$$p(x,y) \quad ;(0 \le x \le M-1 \ , \ 0 \le y \le N-1) \qquad \ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots\ldots(1)$$

Conclusion

The conclusion should summarize the main findings of the study concisely and clearly, without repeating details already discussed in the results or discussion sections. It is not recommended to write the conclusion in separate points; instead, present it as a single, unified, and coherent paragraph. The conclusion should highlight the significance of the research, its possible applications, and suggestions for future studies, if relevant. Avoid including new data, figures, or references that have not been previously discussed in the manuscript.

Conflict of Interest

In this section, the authors may specify the individual contributions of each author as well as the extent and role of any limited assistance obtained from Artificial Intelligence (AI) tools.

Acknowledgements

The Elkawnie Journal limits the number of main authors to a maximum of five. Additional contributors may be recognized in the Acknowledgements section. In this section, authors may include the contract number if the research was supported by a grant and list the names of research members who are not included among the main authors.
