Terms of Service

1. For sketch commissions I will not accept refunds. However, I will work with the commissioner to decide on refunds based on progress made in the case either party needs to back out. Payment plans are available for large commissions.
 - 1a. Please communicate before issuing a chargeback, and keep in mind that turnaround time can vary from hours to weeks or months. I will do my best to communicate any issues or setbacks that have occurred!
2. Commissioners are allowed to request up to two small edits (ex: simple color change, anatomy fix, small missed design aspect). This does not apply to large edits such as completely changing design or adding extra elements that were not previously specified.
3. You may repost my work with proper credit and a link back to my profile. Please do not link back to the link given when your commission is delivered as it does not easily link to the rest of my works.
4. I reserve the right to decline a commission for any reason. This includes any content that I am not comfortable drawing such as pedo, incest, hateful speech, etc.

5. I reserve the right to upcharge commissions depending on complexity of the request such as intricate character designs or complex anatomy/posing.
 6. I currently only accept money through PayPal/Venmo. Even if my payment link has been posted publicly, please only send money after I have confirmed details and pricing and have sent you my link specifically.

FAQ

Q: Do you accept written references?

A: Yes! Some of my favorite commissions/commissioners to work with have been from written references. Please supplement them with ample reference/idea photos, however (they can be from Google Images OR even just the best you can do on paper or with a mouse!). There may be an upcharge depending on the design description.

Q: What usually warrants an upcharge?

A: NSFW commissions have an automatic upcharge of at least $5 due to the stricter hours I have to work on them and any anatomy complexities. Designs that incorporate “floating” elements are the ones that I’ve seen most often; i.e. any design aspects that appear to have specific orientations and wrap around the body. Characters with unfamiliar anatomy to me, such as bird-like feet, may also be upcharged. Below are two examples of designs that I considered complex.

(floating design elements, unique foot anatomy)

(floating design elements, had to create several sketch ideas for top before approval)

Q: What's the average wait for a commission?

A: Typically I give an ETA for commissions when I add them to my to-do list, so please reference that for a timeframe! In general, I try to get basic character art commissions done within two weeks, though depending on circumstances they take up to 2-3 months

(usually circumstances where I cannot work on commissions). Paintings or scenes may take much longer, so estimates can be 1-4 months.

Q: May I have a sketch for approval/see progress so far?

A: Of course! I typically don't send sketches for approval for doodle commissions unless I need to confirm posing, so please ask when you pay! For larger commissions I tend to always send sketch or color blocking approval.

Q: Why do you ask for character attitude/pose ideas?

A: My art is very heavily inspired by character acting and attitude, so it makes the process much smoother and makes the art feel more personalized for your character! So much of my time can be spent brainstorming the right idea, so these details are very appreciated ^^

Q: Do you do couple/multiple character art?

A: I do! I love doing couples art; the price will scale up for each additional character though!
