

NAME AND AFFILIATION Selected to Present at American Association of Geographers Annual Meeting

LAST NAME Joins Geographers From Around the World to Examine Pathways Toward More Just Geographies, and YOUR TOPIC at Annual Conference March 23-27

LOCATION (DATE X, 2022) – NAME AND AFFILIATION will present on TOPIC during the American Association of Geographers (AAG) Annual Meeting, which takes place in Denver and virtually March 23 through March 27. The meeting will offer sessions and panels on topics that include visualizing geographies that are more just and equitable, confronting climate change, Indigenous sovereignty and geographies, and the technologies driving change in the field, from advancements in GIS to new developments in remote sensing.

“ADD A QUOTE THAT HIGHLIGHTS THE ONE THING YOU WANT PEOPLE TO TAKE AWAY FROM YOUR SESSION. ALSO TOUCH ON WHY YOU ARE EXCITED TO PRESENT AT THE ANNUAL MEETING,” said NAME, AFFILIATION.

“The American Association of Geographers Annual Meeting is the gathering place for geographers of all backgrounds and disciplines, a place to reflect, learn, and grow as we all work together to better the world,” said Gary Langham, Ph.D., Executive Director of American Association of Geographers.

“Geographers work on some of the world’s most urgent issues, from climate change to environmental justice to population shifts to humanitarian crises,” said Marilyn Raphael, Director of the UCLA Institute of the Environment and Sustainability and President of the American Association of Geographers. “All of this work is part of the larger consideration we’re addressing in this year’s theme, Toward More Just Geographies. We’re proud to be able to bring together the best and brightest for idea sharing and inspiration.”
