Nevada Homeless Man Might Prefer Prison Over The Streets

Tommy ray McAddo might have gotten his wish after a Nevada judge sentenced him to 15 years in prison.

McAdoo who is homeless was arrested in charge after bringing a steak knife to rob a bank in Reno where he made off with more than $. 2.000.
In court filings McAdoo's lawyer says quote in large part Mr. McAdoo simply wanted to get out of the cold and return to prison McAdoo's entire adult life has been one of crime including five robbery convictions, assault with the intent to murder and intent to commit rape.

FBI agents investigating the Nov. 9, 2016 robbery at a downtown bank found McAdoo hours later eating lunch at a nearby casino and asked him what he did for a living.
McAdoo responded quote I rob banks.

adapted from: Fox News

1. What did McAdoo use to rob a bank?

2. How much did McAdoo get from his robbery?

3. What is McAdoo's motive to rob a bank?

4. How did the FBI agents arrest McAdoo?

5. Based on the text above, what kind of person McAdoo is?