

Rugby union

By Daiki

Rugby is a sport where you can have fun. Rugby you can play it in different ways.

The gear you need for rugby are some boots and sprigs under the boots so that you have grip so then you do not slip. There is more gear like uniforms, mouth guard, kicking tea just in case you are the kicker in your team and finally head gear so if you bang heads together it won't hurt your head as much without your headgear. The most important gear is the mouth guard so then your teeth won't fall out and the uniform is the most important gear is well because then the sporters and you won't know who is in your team and your opponents.

The rules in rugby is that you are not allowed to shoulder charge at your opponent because they might get injured so bad that they might have to go to the hospital another rule is you can't do a high tackle because you can also hurt them badly and they can go to the hospital is well. You also can't do a forward pass to you team mate other wais it will be a penalty to the other team and a forward pass is when you pass the ball to your teammates and they are in front of you. One of the last rules is that you do not be in front of rick or the skim and that is the rules off side and that also means that your team will get a penalty.

There are so many different positions in rugby, here are the names of the positions. Half back is the guy that always receives the ball to his teammates from the rucks and scrums, fist five is the first to touch the ball when the half back receive to his teammate, winger is the portion that is neyer the outline so that means that they have to be strong so that it will be hard for the opponent to take them to the out line and they have to be fast so that it is hard to catch them, Second five is the person that is the person next to the first five. The number 8 is the captain of the team and he is the last person of the scrums, prop is the person that throws the ball from the line out and in the middle of the scrum, Flanker is a position in the sport of rugby union. Each team of 15 players includes two flankers, who play in the forwards, and are generally classified as either blindside or openside flankers, numbers 6 and 7 respectively. The name comes from their position in a scrum in which they 'flank' each set of forwards, lining up in the scrum between the two props, the hooker is one of the forwards' key decision-makers. He or she will coordinate the timing at the scrum, and is also responsible for winning possession in the scrummage by hooking the ball back through the props' legs, center is the person that is next to the second five.

There are so many different positions in rugby, here are the names of the positions. Half back is the guy that always receives the ball to his teammates from the rucks and scrums, first five is the first to touch the ball when the half back receives to his teammate, winger is the position that is never the outline so that means that they have to be strong so that it will be hard for the opponent to take them to the out line and they have to be fast so that it is hard to catch them, Second five is the person that is the person next to the first five. The number 8 is the captain of the team and he is the last person of the scrums, prop is the person that throws the ball from the line out and in the middle of the scrum, Flanker is a position in the sport of rugby union. Each team of 15 players includes two flankers, who play in the forwards, and are generally classified as either blindside or openside flankers, numbers 6 and 7 respectively. The name comes from their position in a scrum in which they 'flank' each set of forwards, lining up in the scrum between the two props, the hooker is one of the forwards' key decision-makers. He or she will coordinate the timing at the scrum, and is also responsible for winning possession in the scrummage by hooking the ball back through the props' legs, center is the person that is next to the second five.

Rugby is a very easy game to play. It's also good when you want to write about it because there are lots of different rules and lines.