

(Operation pop)

gm_arid_mesa

(Plot)

Troops are sent to investigate missing communications from an underground republic laboratory on the planet Yaphoon, the scientists there were working on finding a way to make droid poppers have an extended area of effect. The troops get there to discover that there is a cis fleet in defensive positions. They get multiple vehicles to try and take out the munificents. There are also several aats on the way to the underground layer that they must take out. In the lab tied up is one of the engineers who works there. They must keep him safe but after they free him he tells them that there is a Commando Droid that has copied and wiped the information from the console on the new droid poppers who is escaping, they take out the commando droid and hack into it, they send the information to me. The munificents send down drop pods and more commando droids to try and get the information back. The troopers are forced to take shelter in the area leading to the lab. More aats are sent to guard the entrance to the cave. Troopers who aren't in the cave flank the aats and droids and take them out.

(Briefing)

Troopers recently a republic underground laboratory has cut off all communication with us. We are being sent to investigate this and to hopefully fix whatever may be wrong. The scientists there were devising ways to extend a droid poppers area of effect. Maybe an experiment went wrong and cut off their power, maybe it was something more sinister. Load into laats

(Debrief)

Troops, today you stopped the CIS from stealing information regarding our droid poppers. With that information they could've made a countermeasures to completely render those grenades useless. You also helped an engineer who might not have lived without you. This deserves some promotions
