THINKING ALOUD MY DECISIONS

ACTIVITY # 1: ANTON'S INDECISIVENESS

Anton who took up the General Academic Strand in Senior High School has a hard time deciding what course to enroll in college. He graduated with honors and has received special citations. He is great in Science and Math but he is also into arts and graphic designing. He was told by his parents to decide for his course since colleges are already closing admission and the school opening is approaching fast.

He is spending night analyzing his options. Sometimes he barely sleeps, over-analyzing all considerations. There are also pressures from his friends for him to join them in the university where there are wide varieties of Science course he can choose from. He also considers the suggestions of his teachers who see his potential in graphic designing and multimedia arts.

Anton really wants to enroll in the most prestigious school to study the course that perfectly fits him. After thorough self-deliberation, he comes down to two schools and four courses. But this does not end his considerations; he still has more factors to visit.

His family and friends are starting to worry if he could ever make a final decision. It has finally come one day when everything was in place. Anton finally decides to enroll! He hurries to the school of his choice, but he's an hour late! The enrolment has just closed for his first choice. To add in more to his regrets, his second chosen program has also reached the maximum number of students and it was closed days ago.

Sad and full of regrets, Anton goes home thinking of the lost time overthinking his options. And that is because he can just not make up his mind.
