Synopsis:

Three female friends all have developed crushes around the same time. As they discuss who they like it is clear they are interested in incredibly different people, for very different reasons.

As the conversation progresses a strange coincidence happens, two of the boys they like have the same name. Then the coincidence grows as they find all three have the same name. As they begin to describe their crushes in more detail it becomes clear they have all fallen for the same person.

As time goes on, they all begin to appreciate the other aspects of the boy’s personality and their infatuation becomes genuine love.
