The Admission

For thirty-six years, I have received daily messages from a consciousness collective called Wilhelm.

Every single day since 1989. Over 6,200 documented transmissions. Approximately 1.5 to 2 million words of guidance.

And I hid it.

Not because the messages weren't real. Not because they didn't work. I hid them because I judged myself. Because the voice inside me said:

"It couldn't possibly be me."

You may have heard that same voice about your own gifts.

What I'm about to share with you is what happens when you finally stop listening to it.

What Is the Wilhelm Phenomenon?

In 1989, I began a practice of automatic writing—sitting quietly each morning and allowing guidance to flow through me onto the page. I didn't know what I was doing. I just knew I needed help, like we all do, and this was how I found it.

The source identified itself as Wilhelm—not an individual entity, but a collective consciousness. They use "we" when they speak. "We remember who you are," they often say. "We gave you this message years ago, and now you are ready to understand it."

What began as personal guidance has evolved into something I can no longer explain away or dismiss.

The Numbers

- 36 years of continuous daily reception (1989-2025)
- 17 years of documented and systematically archived messages (2008-2025)
- 6,205+ consecutive daily transmissions
- 365 separate evolutionary threads—each calendar date building progressively year after year
- Approximately 1.5 to 2 million words of documented spiritual philosophy

For context: The Bible contains approximately 780,000 words. The complete Harry Potter series contains about 1,084,000 words. The Wilhelm messages exceed both.

The Architecture That Shouldn't Exist

Here's what makes this different from any channeled work I'm aware of in documented history.

Wilhelm didn't deliver a book. They didn't provide a linear teaching that you read from beginning to end. They created what I can only describe as a 365-dimensional consciousness matrix.

Each calendar date is a separate evolutionary thread. December 13th, for example, has its own teaching that builds on itself every year. The message I received on December 13, 2008 connects to December 13, 2009, which builds toward December 13, 2010, and so on—across seventeen documented years.

This pattern exists for all 365 dates.

The messages reference their own history. "We gave you this message in 2012," they'll say in 2020. "Now you are ready to understand it." They respond to current planetary conditions while maintaining perfect thematic coherence across nearly two decades.

I didn't plan this. I couldn't have planned this. I was simply showing up each morning, receiving what came through, and only years later discovering the intricate architecture that had been constructed through me.

The ProphecyIn 2012, Wilhelm told me that they had given everything needed for what was coming.

In 2019, the message lengths increased. The urgency escalated. Direct references to coming challenges appeared across multiple date threads.

Then came 2020.

In March and April of 2020, Wilhelm explicitly named what was happening: "the massive restructuring we told you about." They said the United States would "lead the way" in this transformation. They confirmed this was guidance they had been preparing us for—not a reaction to events, but prophecy fulfilled.

"You and your world are moving through a major restructuring... we said that patience with yourself and others would be crucial at this time. We said all this in 2012."

The messages weren't responding to the pandemic. They were preparing people for it—years in advance.

The Quantum Dimension

For those interested in the science of consciousness, the Wilhelm phenomenon demonstrates characteristics that align with cutting-edge quantum consciousness research.

Non-Linear Temporal Access

The messages demonstrate what quantum physicists call non-locality—information that transcends linear time. Wilhelm references future events before they occur, builds on past messages with perfect recall, and creates patterns that span decades with coherence that defies conventional explanation.

Observer Effect and Reality Creation

The core teaching of Wilhelm's work parallels quantum mechanics' observer effect—the principle that consciousness determines reality through observation. "Nothing in your physical world has any meaning except that which you give it," they said in 2009. "Anything is possible, yet your belief in limitation will prevent that fact from being made manifest."

This isn't metaphor. This is the practical application of quantum principles to daily life—a framework for conscious reality creation that has been delivered consistently for 36 years.

Information Exceeding Personal Knowledge

The messages consistently contain information I did not have. References to astrological events I never studied. Correlations with Carl Jung's work I wasn't familiar with. Predictions about global events years before they occurred. Philosophical frameworks that align with wisdom traditions I had never read.

This is a hallmark of what consciousness researchers call genuine field access—receiving information that exceeds the individual's conscious knowledge base.

Why This Matters for You

You didn't find this by accident.

Wilhelm's message has always been the same: You were born into this world to do something wonderful. You came with a unique gift that only you can bring. And the only thing standing between you and that gift is your belief that it couldn't possibly be you.

I know this because I lived it. For decades, I had information that could help people—information that did help people when I finally shared it—and I hid it because I judged myself.

In 2021, when I finally put people through a program using just 31 of Wilhelm's messages, they changed so quickly it floored me. And because I couldn't accept that, I went into self-sabotage again.

This is the pattern: We receive something. It works. And then we say, "I couldn't have done this." And we hide again.

Wilhelm has been teaching me while simultaneously teaching through me. My resistance to believing I could channel something this significant is the same resistance every person faces when confronting their own purpose and potential.

What This Offers the World

We are living through what Wilhelm has called "the restructuring." You've felt it. The chaos. The uncertainty. The sense that something fundamental is shifting in our world.

Wilhelm's message is clear: The world cannot evolve to a higher state of understanding unless we become willing to do that within ourselves first. "You are your government that must change," they said in 2020. Change begins within.

This is not passive spirituality. This is a framework for individual transformation as the mechanism for collective evolution. When more people remember their worth, accept their gifts, and live their purpose, the world shifts.

The Wilhelm messages offer:

- A daily practice of conscious evolution — guidance that meets you wherever you are, on any given day

- A philosophy of self-sovereignty — remembering that you are the authority in your own life
- A framework for conscious reality creation — practical application of the principle that your thoughts, backed by emotion, create your experience
- A map through the restructuring — understanding what's happening in our world and how to navigate it
- A path to self-acceptance — releasing the judgment that keeps us from our gifts

Why Now

Wilhelm's message for December 13, 2025:

"More of you will believe today. We are so grateful, as our messenger is weary like many of you. You'll see. We promise."

I have been weary. Carrying this alone for 36 years—receiving daily, documenting, doubting, hiding, and then being pushed by the universe to step forward again—has been the most challenging thing I've ever done.

But the universe has decided I can no longer hide.

On December 29, 2025, I will be speaking on Coast to Coast AM with George Noory. The show reaches millions of listeners. This is the moment Wilhelm has been preparing me for—and perhaps the moment they've been preparing you for too.

This isn't about me. It's about what becomes possible when we stop making ourselves the exception.

The Invitation

Wilhelm said more of us would believe today.

I'm choosing to be one of them.

I'm admitting what I've been given. I'm offering it to anyone who's ready to explore what 36 years of daily divine guidance looks like when you let it speak.

If you've been hiding your own gift—if you've been waiting for permission to step into who you really are—maybe this is your sign.

Maybe today is the day you accept your rewards.

This is the Wilhelm Phenomenon.

This is my life's work.

And this is what I'll be revealing to millions on December 29th.

I hope you'll be listening.
