Course Description:

This course combines instruction and leadership practices in a laboratory of practical school situations. The course provides student leaders with the opportunity to learn the basic concepts of democratic government experience. Students will plan and organize assemblies, meetings, social and recreational activities, rallies, elections, and community service projects. Student leaders will develop real life skills such as effective speaking and writing techniques, how to work with peers of diverse backgrounds, share responsibilities with adults, and consider problems of income, expenditures, and budgets.
