

4K eLearning Social Emotional Support

Social emotional learning is a central element to Greenville County Schools PreK instruction. Through social emotional learning, children practice identifying and expressing their feelings in appropriate ways such as using words, taking deep breaths, or using other self-calming techniques. Children also learn about friendships, personal safety, resolving conflicts, and working with others. See below for ideas and suggestions for how to continue supporting your child's social emotional development at home.

Support Strategies

Taking Care of One's Own Needs

- Let children do things for themselves.
- Encourage children to use tools.
- Support children's attempt to take care of their emotional as well as physical needs.

Expressing Feelings in Words

- Establish a supportive emotional climate.
- Help children to label wither feelings.
- Encourage children to role play and make up or illustrate stories about their experiences.

Building Relationships with Children and Adults

- Establish supportive relationships with children.
- Maintain a stable group of children and adults.
- Support relationships children establish with one another.
- Provide opportunities for children to interact with other children whom they are less familiar.
- Refer children to one another.

Creating and Experiencing Collaborative Play

- Provide materials that support collaborative play.
- Allow enough space for collaborative play.
- Encourage children to plan, work and recall together.
- Provide opportunities for collaborative play at group times.

Dealing with Social Conflict

- Treat conflicts as a normal part of development.
- Prevent conflicts when possible.
- Help children resolve conflicts when they occur.

Problem-Solving Approach to Conflict

- Step 1: Approach calmly, stopping any hurtful actions.
- Step 2: Acknowledge children's feelings.
- Step 3: Gather information.
- Step 4: Restate the problem.
- Step 5: Ask for ideas and solutions and choose one together.
- Step 6: Give follow-up support as needed.

Social Stories

Social Stories are brief stories that describe and model situations from a child's perspective. The stories are individual in nature and can be created for any topic. Social Stories typically include photographs and are written about a topic that is currently challenging for the child. The intent is that by sharing these stories children will have a better understanding and consistent reminder of the target skill. Many social stories are available online and can be found by searching a topic, for example "missing school" or "handwashing".

Literature Support

Books are a powerful, effective way to teach children about their world. The following titles explore a variety of social emotional skills and concepts through engaging, child-friendly ways. Many of these titles are available as read alouds through YouTube and can be accessed by searching the title and/or author.

Books About Fear

There Might Be Lobsters by Carolyn Crimi

Lots of things at the beach scare Sukie. Lots. Because she is just a small dog, and the stairs are big and sandy, and the waves are big and whooshy, and the balls are big and beachy.

Jabari Jumps by Gaia Cornwall

Jabari is definitely ready to jump off the diving board. He's finished his swimming lessons and passed his swim test, and he's a great jumper, so he's not scared at all.

The Dark by Lemony Snicket

Laszlo is afraid of the dark. The dark lives in the same house as Laszlo. Mostly, though, the dark stays in the basement and doesn't come into Laszlo's room. But one night, it does.

Don't Think About Purple Elephants by Susanne Merritt

Sometimes Sophie worries — not during the day when she is busy with family and friends, but at night when everything is calm and quiet.

Too Shy for Show-and-Tell by Beth Bracken

Sam is a quiet little boy who hates show-and-tell. Just thinking about it makes his stomach hurt. Sam must find a way to conquer his fear of show-and-tell.
