Conference Policies

Below you may find our policies regarding care for attendees' well-being, environmentally-friendly measures, social media use, and anti-harassment policy. Please read them carefully before you depart for our in-person conference at the University of California, Irvine.

Health Policy

NATSA will be taking many steps to ensure the health and wellbeing of conference attendees.

- 1. Proof of COVID-19 vaccination or negative COVID-19 test is no longer required to attend the NATSA 2023 Conference.
- 2. Masks are optional but welcome. Please understand and respect that wearing a mask is a personal choice for conference attendees. Masks will be provided at the registration desk during the conference.
- 3. For the well-being of all participants, we kindly request that if any attendee is feeling unwell, they consider wearing a mask throughout the conference or choose to refrain from attending.

Environmentally-friendly Policy

NATSA abides by University of California's Policy of Sustainable Practices. All participants are strongly recommended to avoid single-use plastics and bring environmentally-friendly utensils and water bottles for their own use at the conference. NATSA collaborates with local vendors who provide biodegradable utensils and paper cups.

Social Media Use Policy

NATSA, in collaboration with University of California, Irvine, may photograph, broadcast and record some portions of the events at the conference, including through web streaming (for our public event) and photography, for the production of material distributed on our social media accounts, newsletters, and conference reports to NATSA's partners and sponsors. Please don't hesitate to contact NATSA's Program Directors at natsa.pd@na-tsa.org if you find your photos being featured on our social media accounts and wish them to be removed from our social media use.

Anti-Harassment Policy

NATSA strives to provide a safe and welcoming environment at its programs and events that are free from bias and intimidation for all participants. The Association does not tolerate discrimination or any forms of harassment, including but not limited to sexual harassment.

- Discrimination is defined as adverse treatment of an individual or group of people based upon race, color, national origin, religion, sex, gender, gender expression, gender identity, gender transition status, pregnancy, physical or mental disability, medical condition, genetic information, ancestry, marital status, age, sexual orientation, citizenship, or service in the uniformed services where there is no legitimate reason for such treatment.
- Harassment is defined as unwelcome conduct, including verbal, nonverbal, or physical conduct, which from the standpoint of a reasonable person, (1) is addressed directly to one or more persons; (2) insults, stigmatizes, or intimidates those persons; and (3) indicates grave disrespect and intent to demean those persons.

Anyone who engages in discrimination or harassment conduct will be subject to discipline, up to and including removal of NATSA roles as staff, moderator, speaker, panelist, discussant, or participant, expulsion from the NATSA program or event, and possible revocation of membership in the association.

If anyone experiences or witnesses any violation of the NATSA's anti-harassment policy at a NATSA program or event, they should immediately report instances of harassment using one or more reporting channels listed below:

- Email the Program Directors at natsa.pd@na-tsa.org, or call Program Director Wei-An Tsai at +1(857)777-8646. Reports will be treated as confidential.
- Come see Local Director Diane Hsieh, Secretary Yu-Li Wang, or other assigned NATSA staff at the registration desk. Reports will be treated as confidential and shelter will be provided if needed.
- If you wish to report anonymously, use the "Send Us a Message" form at the bottom of NATSA's website (https://www.na-tsa.org/); type anything in the name and email address fields to bypass requirements for form submission. Please note, however, that anonymous reporting may limit NATSA's ability to respond to the report.

NATSA staff will be available for immediate assistance on-site, and will help connect anyone in need to the University of California, Irvine's Title IX Office and the University police.

The University of California's comprehensive Policy on Discrimination and Harassment extends to the NATSA Conference as well. It is imperative that every attendee strictly adhere to these guidelines and treat all fellow participants with respect. Any instances of discriminatory or harassing behavior will be handled in accordance with the University's policy.

Signal of Uncomfortableness (Yellow Card and Red Card)

NATSA encourages participants to voice uncomfortableness toward another person's conduct, whether private or public. We understand this may be difficult for many, so we designed the "Yellow Card" and "Red Card," which will be provided to participants at the registration desk, to help signal uncomfortableness. Use the Yellow Card when a conversation or interaction is going in a direction that makes you uncomfortable. Use the Red Card when a conversation or interaction is discriminatory or harassing, and should stop immediately.

Yellow Card: "This interaction is making me uncomfortable, please stop or adjust your behavior, tone, or the content of your speech."

Red Card: "This interaction is discriminatory or harassing. Please stop immediately."

If you want to voice your uncomfortableness to a NATSA staff directly and discretely, you can find NATSA staff wearing blue lanyards (as opposed to the green lanyards that participants wear). There will always be at least one NATSA staff member at the registration desk.

Conference Venue

The entirety of the NATSA 2023 annual conference will take place in the building of the Student Center, University of California, Irvine. The full address is 311 W Peltason Dr # A, Irvine, CA 92697.

The Forged Taiwanese

Friday, June 23, 2023 | 9:00 AM - 4:50 PM Saturday, June 24, 2023 | 9:00 AM - 3:00 PM Crescent Bay A

Reception

Friday, June 23, 2023 | 12:20 PM - 1:30 PM Crescent Bay A Lunch Provided

Artists

Sang Chi Liu | Computational Media, Arts, and Cultures, Duke University
Kai Chu Chuang | Department of Graphic Design, Virginia Commonwealth University
Shu Chin Yeh | NAX group
Huiyu Yang | Department of Graphic Design, Virginia Commonwealth University

Event Description

The Forged Taiwanese is a multimedia installation composed of four interconnected projects: Dialogues of Forgery, Phantom Scripting, Taiwan Potemkin Villages, and Intermezzo by four artists. In this project, our art collectively emphasizes the crisis of identity by shifting the question from who are we? (who is or is not Taiwanese?) to displaying how identity is being used as property in complex political and economic systems.

Welcome Reception

Taiwanese American as an Aesthetic/Academic/Activist Concern

Thursday, June 22, 2023 | 5:00 PM - 6:30 PM Pacific Ballroom A Dinner Reception Provided

Moderator

Wen Liu | Institute of Ethnology, Academia Sinica

Speakers

Huay Chen-Wu | Department of Education, University of California, Santa Barbara Chia-Chun Jennie Chung | Formosan Association for Public Affairs

Michelle Kuo | Department of History and Politics, American University of Paris

Albert Wu | Institute of History and Philology, Academia Sinica, Taiwan

Event Description

invite speakers deeply engaged in advanced works of Taiwanese-American non-fiction writing, research, and activism. We eagerly anticipate sharing their reflections on studying and imagining Taiwanese-American identities and experiences. Specifically, we are keen to explore the following questions with our panelists:

This event aims to serve as a forum for reflection and inspiration. We

- How has Taiwanese American identity changed over time?
- What are the different approaches to Taiwanese American identity?

- What are the major challenges in building the Taiwanese American communities?
- What are the limits of Taiwanese Americanness as a framework?
- What is the future of Taiwanese Americanness?

Through this event, we look forward to facilitating meaningful dialogue and fostering a deeper understanding of the multifaceted Taiwanese-American identity.

Opening Forum

Indigenous Taiwan through Critical Lenses: Comparative and Place-Based Perspectives

Friday, June 23, 2023 | 9:00 AM - 10:30 AM Pacific Ballroom AB

Moderators

Susan Yang-Hsun Hou | Learning Sciences & Human Development, University of Washington

Speakers

Jolan Hsieh | Department of Ethnic Relations and Cultures, National Dong Hwa University Kyle Shernuk | Department of East Asian Languages & Cultures, Georgetown University Meixi | University of Minnesota Shu-Yuan Yang | Institute of Ethnology, Academia Sinica, Taiwan

Event Description

This roundtable emphasizes the island of Taiwan as a grounding point for multiple geographical perspectives. Instead of positioning Taiwan as a boundary object between the East and the West, we invite the reimagination and repositioning of Taiwan as a liminal space of unbounded and interconnected possibilities. In other words, we will discuss alternative ways of positioning Taiwan in the world, including ways that might have been previously overlooked.

To this end, we will discuss Taiwan as a dynamic contact zone inscribed with multifarious intra- and inter-regional encounters, often in contexts of asymmetrical power relations. Specifically, the history of Indigenous peoples in Taiwan entails multifaceted interactions with colonialism and settler colonialism, which has resulted in the loss of land, language, identity, and cultural knowledge. By proposing an interdisciplinary forum that centers on Indigenous Taiwan, we hope to initiate conversations about (de)colonization, Indigenous rights, cultural preservation, environmental justice, and beyond.

In addition, as the opening panel of the 2023 NATSA Conference, we hope to emphasize the significance of Indigeneity and Indigenous Taiwanese topics. By doing so, we seek to recognize and honor the rich historical, present, and ongoing legacies of Indigenous knowledge and voices in Taiwan. As dedicated Taiwan Studies researchers and professionals, we are committed to highlighting the invaluable contributions of Indigenous knowledge production that have long preceded and coexisted with our own endeavors, which will continue to shape our understanding of the past, present, and future of the world.

Keynote Speech

China's Expanding Influence in and around Taiwan: Patterns, Implications, and Modes of Resistance

Friday, June 23, 2023 | 10:50 AM - 12:20 PM Pacific Ballroom AB

Moderator

Shih-An Wang | University of Chicago Law School

Speakers

Thomas J. Shattuck | Perry World House, University of Pennsylvania Puma Shen | Graduate School of Criminology, National Taipei University Rwei-Ren Wu __ | Institute of Taiwan History, Academia Sinica, Taiwan

Event Description

The event aims to facilitate conversations between interdisciplinary perspectives regarding China's expanding influence in and around Taiwan, focusing on its patterns, implications, and modes of resistance. As widely observed in recent years, China uses its technological and capital edges to destabilize the political-economic order of its neighboring countries/jurisdictions. The influence varies across geographical lines and state boundaries, and the various forms of influence are more or less interwoven into different domestic political, economic, and social structures, impacting the lives of many individuals and communities. These individuals and communities have thus developed novel thinking and actions to resist China's pervasive influence on their social welfare and political visions. These new developments on China's influence thus call attention from both scholars and practitioners who are concerned with the geopolitical dynamics between China and beyond. By inviting speakers from various backgrounds, the special event intends to enhance the current understanding of China's influence and resistance, stipulating prospects for continued scholarly inquiry and practical solutions.

The event will be held in the format of a roundtable. It is divided into three parts: In the first part, each speaker will have 15 minutes to present their work on the topic. Professor Rwei-Ren Wu will discuss Hong Kongers' efforts to develop new self-identities under China's expanding control of Hong Kong's legal system, among other public affairs. Professor Po-yang Shen will present China's information propaganda in Taiwan and other neighboring countries, focusing on China's different strategies for information operations. Finally, Mr. Thomas J. Shattuck will shed light on the influence of China's rise on its neighboring countries from the perspective of East Asia politics.

In the second part, the panelists will comment and ask questions of each other for the first 15 minutes, followed by a 20-minute Q&A session open to the audience.

Event Description

In this panel, we invite this year's NATSA Undergraduate Paper Competition awardees to present their papers. NATSA Undergraduate Paper Competition Award celebrates outstanding academic work about Taiwan by undergraduate students. Submissions are reviewed by a committee comprised of three faculty members at the university level from different disciplines. This year, the review committee selected Alison Chen's paper "Let Taiwanese Speak': Diasporic Taiwanese Activism for Democratization (1960-90s)" as the winner, and also selected Evan Chan's paper "Expanding on the Framework of Taiwan's International Space:

Exploring Higher Education Internationalization Efforts in Taiwan" and Natalie Chiu's paper "The Chip Currency: Exploring Taiwan's Quest for Diplomacy and National Security" (Natalie Chu will present the paper with its new title "Made in Taiwan: Exploring the Emergence of TSMC in Taiwan's Pursuit of Nation Branding") as honorable mentions. We congratulate the originality, clarity of writing, and contributions to the understanding of Taiwan of their work. See their award acceptance speech at https://www.na-tsa.org/2023-undergraduate-paper-awardees.

Building Resilience: Perspectives from Environmental Politics in and beyond Taiwan

Friday, June 23, 2023 | 3:20 PM - 4:50 PM Emerald Bay A

Moderator

Chris Chih-Hua Tseng | Department of Sociology, University of California, Irvine

Speakers

Paul Jobin | Institute of Sociology, Academia Sinica, Taiwan | Revisiting the Concept of "Civic-Eco Nationalism" in Taiwan's Context

Aaron Su | Department of Anthropology, Princeton University | Against the Development Paradigm: Rethinking Participatory Environmental Governance in Hualien and Shezidao

Wen-Ling Tu | Department of Public Administration, National Chengchi University | Making Kaohsiung Archive for an Environmental Injustice Global Record: Mapping and Communicating Petrochemical Harm

Event Description

This event is a roundtable discussion among scholars who have contributed to scholarship on environmental movements, environmental and ecological politics, and different approaches to environmental remediations in and beyond the context of Taiwan. Dr. Paul Jobin's talk, titled "Revisiting the concept of 'civic-eco nationalism' in Taiwan's Context," discusses his earlier theorization of the relationship and interaction between environmentalism, democratic movements, and civic-nationalism in Taiwan with his recent reflections and further revision of the thesis. Mr. Aaron Su's talk, "Against the Development Paradigm: Rethinking Participatory Environmental Governance in Hualien and Shezidao," will share his experiences of the challenges of attempting civic-oriented, participatory environmental remediation efforts with local communities, using Shezidao and some of his other work with farmers in Hualien and Taitung as examples. Dr. Wen-Ling Tu's talk, "Making Kaohsiung Archive for an Environmental Injustice Global Record: Mapping and Communicating Petrochemical Harm," is an ethnographic project she collaborates with international scholars led by UCI. The project examines and explains the accumulated harms of the petrochemical-driven development model in Kaohsiung, the most important industrial city in Taiwan; Dr. Tu also reflects on the knowledge-making and data interpretation process of developing the Kaohsiung Archive. After all three talks, panelists will give comments and feedback on each other's presentation, and the floor will open to have a Q&A session with the audience.

Thomas J. Shattuck | Perry World House, University of Pennsylvania | Resiliency in Times of Crisis: Developments and Lessons from Taiwan Puma Shen | Graduate School of Criminology, National Taipei University | Taiwan Civil Defense: Empowering Communities in times of crisis

This panel examines the processes through which everyday practices of resistance crystallize into formalized systems for resilience. By focusing on resilience as an emergent structure, we focus on the dynamic nature of preparedness for changing threats. This discussion takes place against the backdrop of the so-called new cold war and ramped-up Chinese aggression toward Taiwan. Such existential threat has engendered new forms of collective resistance and activism that aim not only at working against a threat but promoting better preparedness for future crises. We examine these emergent social movements and groups to consider how sustainable networks that withstand these threats are built and how the nature of resistance.

Speakers

Yuchin Chen | Department of Asian Studies, University of Texas at Austin Meng-Ying Catrina Liu | The Grayhawk Agency
Bert Scruggs | Department of East Asian Studies, University of California, Irvine
Kyle Shernuk | Department of East Asian Languages & Cultures, Georgetown University

Event Description

In recent years, Taiwanese literature has experienced a surge in visibility and recognition within the global cultural community. Wu Ming-yi's novel, The Stolen Bicycle, was longlisted for the Man Booker International Prize in 2018, whereas Kevin Chen's novel, Ghost Town, found its place on the longlist of the 2023 Pen America Literary Award. Beyond the realm of literature, Taiwanese illustrators such as Lin Lian-en and Animo Chen have achieved acclaim, with their picture books garnering the prestigious BolognaRagazzi Award at the Bologna Children's Book Fair. Undoubtedly, Taiwan's vibrant democracy and multicultural society have provided a fertile ground for creative expressions in different artistic fields to flourish

In order to explore the diverse and dynamic trajectories of Taiwanese stories across geographical, cultural, and linguistic borders, this special event aims to create a lively platform for discussing the circulation and reception of Taiwanese fiction and non-fiction works in the international book market and academia. The growing international presence of Taiwanese publishing titles is the result of the collaborative efforts of multiple stakeholders, such as translators, literary agents, academics, critics, and authors. Hence, this event will feature prominent professionals and scholars who will share their invaluable insights on the pivotal roles they have played in promoting Taiwanese stories to the world. Our goal is not only to gain a more comprehensive view of how Taiwanese literature has gradually become a part of world literature, thanks to the dedicated endeavors of many cross-cultural mediators, but also to understand how Taiwanese stories possess the inherent potential to captivate a broad readership by incorporating elements of local history and culture.

The event will take the form of a forum and feature a lineup of distinguished speakers, including Bert Scruggs, Kyle Shernuk, Meng-Ying Catrina Liu, and Yuchin Chen. Some topics that we hope to address include the universal appeal and local specificity of Taiwanese literary works, the commercial potential and academic value of Taiwanese literature, the evolving boundaries of literature in a new multimedia cultural landscape, the intricate dynamics between fiction and non-fiction, the issues of translatability, adaptability, and reception of Taiwanese stories, and the opportunities and obstacles encountered when promoting Taiwanese narratives to a global audience

In addition to the forum, we will also be hosting a small book exhibition to complement the event. This exhibition will feature a broad range of books from Taiwan, as well as translated works based on Taiwanese publishing titles. Encompassing a variety of genres that include fiction, non-fiction, and academic literature, this curated collection of publications aims to highlight the richness, diversity, and vibrancy of Taiwan's literary and publishing culture.

Resistance in the Era of Nationalisms: Performing Identities in Taiwan and Hong Kong

Saturday, June 24, 2023 | 10:50 AM - 12:20 PM Emerald Bay A

Moderator

Yu-Jhen Chen | Sociology, CUNY Graduate Center

Speakers

Co-Editor | Hsin-I Sydney Yueh | Department of Communication, University of Missouri-Columbia Chapter Contributor | Wen Liu | Institute of Ethnology, Academia Sinica, Taiwan Discussant | Austin Horng-En Wang | Department of Political Science, University of Nevada, Las Vegas

Event Description

In this panel, we invite the authors of the newly-published book Resistance in the Era of Nationalisms: Performing Identities in Taiwan and Hong Kong and commentator to share research findings and insights from the book, and from writing the book. This book collects eight essays to examine how people in Taiwan and Hong Kong exercise democratic self-rule, fully embody their local identities, and become global citizens, despite the big-power politics between China and the United States. These chapters, plus Audrey Tang's interview as the epilogue, address topics ranging from the rhetoric of political leaders and the language games of mass protesters on social media to resistant street performance.

Co-editor Hsin-I Sydney Yueh and one of the contributors Wen Liu will talk about various forms of resistance, such as people's participation in everyday politics, communication activities, and the process of writing this book. This book takes a critical stance and a culture-centered approach to the communicative process of "glocalized resistance" in an era of rising nationalisms. To further an interdisciplinary conversation about Taiwan and Hong Kong under U.S.-China relations, we invite Austin Horng-En Wang as a discussant to offer insights from the perspective of political science. We hope this panel showcases the geocultural identity-in-the-making of the Taiwanese and Hong Kong people, and resonates with other societies under imminent threat by an aggressive neighbor.

Mark Hsiang-Yu Feng | Department of Music, University of California, Davis Jiun-Yu Liu | Burke Museum of Natural History and Culture, University of Washington SueAnn Shiah | Musicology, Princeton Theological Seminary Nikal/Margaret Yun-Pu Tu | School of Law, University of Washington

This event is designed to create a platform for Taiwanese and Taiwanese-American graduate students and young scholars. Our goal is to facilitate informal socialization, and more importantly, provide an environment where participants can discuss how they manage or cope with experiences and anxieties related to "being marginalized" or "being different" within North American academic settings. Our focus will be on the processes of transitioning to a different country for academic pursuits and the challenges arising from this shift.

"Being marginalized" can signify a myriad of experiences. In this context, we are particularly interested in exploring the realms of ethnic/racial (being Taiwanese or Taiwanese-American, Indigenous, or international student) and gender identities (LGBTQIA+) as scholars strive to centralize their work within North American academia. Nonetheless, we also welcome participants interested in discussing experiences of marginalization from other perspectives. These identities may present intersectional complexities as scholars navigate the social histories of both Taiwanese and North American contexts, especially upon moving to, interacting with, and adjusting to a new country.

The event will kick off with participant introductions, followed by small group dialogues. These discussions will focus on personal experiences of difference, marginalization, and relocation challenges. Participants will share significant memories of feeling marginalized, with the group offering collective support and understanding. The discourse will progress to strategies for handling these situations or potential alternative responses. We'll also explore how our identities and experiences could drive innovation in our respective fields.

Global Taiwan Institute Lunch Talk: Research, Policy, Think Tanks, and Beyond

Saturday, June 24, 2023 | 12:20 PM - 1:30 PM Emerald Bay B Lunch Provided

Moderator

Chris Chih-Hua Tseng | Department of Sociology, University of California, Irvine

Speakers

Adrienne Wu | Global Taiwan Institute Zoë Weaver-Lee | Global Taiwan Institute

Event Description

This session invites two speakers from Global Taiwan Institute (GTI) to share their experiences in the think tank environment and explores the intersection of research and policy. Established in 2016, GTI is a non-profit policy incubator dedicated to promoting U.S.-Taiwan relations and creating space for Taiwan in the international community. The two speakers will share how GTI promotes understanding of Taiwan and the Taiwanese people in the policy circles in the U.S. and how their life experiences and research interests led them to their current positions. This session will also explore how research can be translated into policy and practice, and our two speakers will share some insights for students who are interested in the job market of think tanks.

Transitional Justice from East Asian Perspectives: Politics, Practices & Memories

Saturday, June 24, 2023 | 3:20 PM - 4:50 PM Emerald Bay A

Moderator

Yu-Jhen Chen | Sociology, CUNY Graduate Center

Speakers

Chungmoo Choi | Department of East Asian Studies, University of California, Irvine Rwei-Ren Wu | Institute of Taiwan History, Academia Sinica, Taiwan Dominic Meng-Hsuan Yang | Department of History, University of Missouri-Columbia

Event Discription

We hope to hold a roundtable on transitional justice from the East Asian perspectives, focusing on its practices, politics, and relationship with the creation and operation of memories. Coined in the 1990s, transitional justice has been used as an umbrella term to encompass the continuous efforts of a state, government, or society to deal with legacies of large-scale injustice in the aftermath of authoritarian regimes. Transitional justice develops in parallel with democratization, and while addressing historical atrocities enacted by state violence, it also indexes a forward-looking vision, in that the pursuit of transitional justice epitomizes imaginations of a more democratic, just, and peaceful future. Therefore, the implementation of transitional justice requires the visions and practices of politicians, activists, and citizens within a given political structure.

Transitional justice encompasses a wide range of policies and initiatives. Among these, truth-seeking and memory preservation initiatives are intertwined with the creation and operation of memory. These initiatives can play a powerful role in acknowledging human rights violations, social traumas, and individual sufferings, thereby initiating possibilities of reparation and reconciliation in post-authoritarian societies. State violence has often been experienced, comprehended, and remembered differently by distinct individuals, social groups, or political communities. Revisiting and restoring the complexity and multilayered-ness of post-traumatic memories in East Asia and reconsidering the ways they are narrated therefore become a crucial task for Taiwan to bring about social solidarity and evolve into a robust democracy.

By inviting scholars from different disciplines and jurisdictions, the roundtable seeks to facilitate interdisciplinary dialogues that confront critical questions regarding the practices, politics, and memories of transitional justice. The event will be divided into two parts. In the first part, invited scholars will share their perspectives on various aspects of transitional justice. Each scholar will have a 20-minute presentation slot. Professor Wu Rwei-Ren will provide insights into the implementation of transitional justice policies under the Tsai Ing-wen administration and discuss the implications of these policies for Taiwan's democratic consolidation. Professor Dominic Meng-Hsuan Yang will discuss how different communities adopt distinct memories of the past in light of their divergent historical experiences. Professor Chungmoo Choi will shed light on the experiences of South Korea and how these experiences facilitate (or not facilitate) the re-imagination of Korean citizens' identities and memories. The second part will feature a 30-minute Q&A session where the speakers will engage in a discussion with each other and the audience at large.

Networking & Mentoring Session III

To be a Taiwan Scholar: Building an Academic Career and Beyond

Saturday, June 24, 2023 | 3:20 PM - 4:50 PM Emerald Bay C

Moderator

Yi-Yang Cheng | Department of Linguistics, University of California, Santa Barbara

Panelists

Wei-Jie Liao | Department of Public Management, CUNY John Jay College of Criminal Justice Austin Horng-En Wang | Department of Political Science, University of Nevada, Las Vegas Chee-Hann Wu | Department of Drama, New York University

Event Description

This panel seeks to invite young scholars working in Taiwan Studies and related fields to provide their insights and suggestions on building an academic career in North America. In this panel, speakers will first introduce the journey that took them to their current positions. Then the moderator will facilitate several rounds of Q&A sessions, during which speakers will share their experiences of finding a job in the competitive job market and teaching and researching as an early-career scholar. The panelists will also discuss the question of how to market their research on Taiwan Studies in the global academic environment. What challenges would researchers from Taiwan, studying Taiwan, or engaging with Taiwan face? What is the resilience of Taiwan scholars and how to sustain and strengthen it? What are new possibilities and directions for Taiwan Studies to reposition itself and reconnect with various disciplines, fields, and theories?

Taiwan Repositioned: Reflections on the State of Taiwan Studies

Saturday, June 24, 2023 | 5:00 PM - 6:30 PM Pacific Ballroom AB

Moderator

Chee-Hann Wu | Department of Drama, New York University; President of NATSA 2023

Speakers

Daphne Lei | Department of Drama, University of California, Irvine
Austin Horng-En Wang | Department of Political Science, University of Nevada, Las Vegas; Program Director of NATSA 2016

Event Description

This round table invites speakers from different fields to conclude this year's NATSA conference theme and consider Taiwan studies from domestic, comparative, and global perspectives. This dialogue will expand from NATSA's mission to reflect on the current state of Taiwan studies while addressing current challenges and exploring future trends.
