S:10) I learnt swimming when I was in third grade. My brother was fourteen, and he couldn't swim, too. We always went into pools but only to the shallow side, standing and splashing in the water. One day, our parents enrolled us at a weekend course in a hotel. We finally got into the pool and actually tried to learn swimming. We just did like holding onto the bars, flapping our feet, and then our hands. My swimming instructor shouted to me and asked to put our head in the water. My heart screamed. If I put my head in the water. I would surely drown. Then he came over and corrected my posture and shouted again. I looked at him doubtful. He said, "You can't swim if you don't put your head in the water. Trust me" I finally did. Then I was able to swim. \n

What is the writer's intention to write the text?

- A:) To persuade the readers to learn swimming.
- B:) To tell his experience.
- C:) To explain how to swim well.
- D:) To describe the hotel's pool.
- E:) To show his disappointment to his instructor.

S:12) Rabbits are small mammals in the family Leporidae of the order Lagomorpha, found in several parts of the world. There are eight different genera in the family classified as rabbits, including the European rabbit (Oryctolagus cuniculus), cottontail rabbits (genus Sylvilagus; 13 species), and the Amami rabbit (Pentalagus furnessi, an endangered species on Amami Oshima, Japan). There are many other species of rabbit, and these, along with pikas and hares, make up the order Lagomorpha. The male is called a buck and the female is a doe; a young rabbit is a kitten or kit. Rabbit habitats include meadows, woods, forests, grasslands, deserts and wetlands. Rabbits live in groups, and the best known species, the European rabbit, lives in underground burrows, or rabbits holes. A group of burrows is called warren. \n

More than half the world's rabbits population resides in North America. They are also native to southwestern Europe, Southeast Asia, Sumatra, some islands of Japan, and in parts of Africa and South America. They are not naturally found in most Eurasia, where a number of species of hares are present. Rabbits first entered South America relatively recently, as part of the Great American Interchange. Much of the continent has just one species of rabbit, the tapeti, while most of South America's southern cone is without rabbits. \n

From the text, we know that...

- A:) the rabbit is a natural animal in Eurasia
- B:) the number of rabbits in the world is limited
- C:) rabbits are small mammals found in all over the world
- D:) the population of the Amami rabbit is going to be extinct

For preparation, I had to memorize and understand the story well. My teacher guided and taught me pronunciation, facial expression and gestures. One day, before performing, my friends and I were busy to prepare the props and costumes for the competition. Thing that me sad was my teacher rented the props and costumes for my friends but not for me. My two friends had beautiful costumes and luxurious props. Although I just wore the simple ones, I performed my best to win the competition. The competition started. I got number 29 and my friends got number 5 and 10. I was nervous but I showed my best performance on stage. Lots of people took photos and videos of me. Finally, anxiety was gone after I had finished performing. And then, the announcement came which made three of us very uneasy. Luckily I was chosen as the first winner. I went to the stage and all the judges congratulated me and gave a plaque, trophy, and money. I was very happy. \n

Why did the writer feel sad before the competition?

S:20) The idea that coffee is bad for your heart pops up periodically. Over the last 20 years several studies - mainly in Europe – found that regular drinking very strong coffee could sharply increase chlesterol levels. Researches even isolated fatlike chemicals, cafestol and kahweol, responsible for the rise. It turn out that the European brewing method – boiling water sites on the coffee grounds for several minutes before straining – produces high concentrations of cofestol and kahweol. By contrast, filter and percolation methods remove all but a trace of these chemicals. Moreover, the studies involved large amounts of coffee – five to six cups a day. Average coffee drinkers consume only two cups. \n

S:37) Long, long ago, when the gods and goddesses used to mingle in the affairs of mortals, there was a small kingdom on the slope of Mount Wayang in West Java. The King, named Sang Prabu, was a wise man. He had an only daughter, called Princess Teja Nirmala, who was famous for her beauty but she was not married. One day Sang Prabu made up his mind to settle the matter by a show of strength. \n

After that, Prince of Blambangan, named Raden Begawan had won the competition. Unfortunately, the wicked fairy, Princess Segara fell in love with Raden Begawan and used magic power to render him unconscious and he forgot his wedding. When Sang Prabu was searching, Raden Begawan saw him and soon realized that he had been enchanted by the wicked fairy. The fairy could not accept this, so she killed Raden Begawan. When Princess Teja Nirmala heard this, she was very sad. So a nice fairy took her to the Kahyangan. \n

S:39) Read the following song lyric to answer the questions that follow. \n

"We Are The Champions" as written by and Freddie Mercury \n

I've paid my dues \n

Time after time \n

I've done my sentence \n

But committed no crime \n

And bad mistakes \n

I've made a few \n

I've had my share of sand kicked in my face \n

But I've come through \n

(And I need to go on and on, and on, and on) \n

We are the champions, my friends \n

And we'll keep on fighting 'til the end \n

We are the champions \n

We are the champions \n

No time for losers \n

'Cause we are the champions of the world \n

I've taken my bows \n

And my curtain calls \n

You brought me fame and fortune and everything that goes with it \n

I thank you all \n

But it's been no bed of roses \n

No pleasure cruise \n

I consider it a challenge before the whole human race \n

And I ain't gonna lose \n

(And I need just go on and on, and on, and on) \n

We are the champions, my friends \n

And we'll keep on fighting 'til the end \n

We are the champions \n

We are the champions No time for losers \n

'Cause we are the champions of the world \n

We are the champions, my friends \n
And we'll keep on fighting 'til the end \n
We are the champions \n
We are the champions \n
No time for losers \n
'Cause we are the champions \n
\n

S:40) Rabbits are small mammals in the family Leporidae of the order Lagomorpha, found in several parts of the world. There are eight different genera in the family classified as rabbits, including the European rabbit (Oryctolagus cuniculus), cottontail rabbits (genus Sylvilagus; 13 species), and the Amami rabbit (Pentalagus furnessi, an endangered species on Amami Oshima, Japan). There are many other species of rabbit, and these, along with pikas and hares, make up the order Lagomorpha. The male is called a buck and the female is a doe; a young rabbit is a kitten or kit. \n

Rabbit habitats include meadows, woods, forests, grasslands, deserts and wetlands. Rabbits live in groups, and the best known species, the European rabbit, lives in underground burrows, or rabbits holes. A group of burrows is called warren. \n

More than half the world's rabbits population resides in North America. They are also native to southwestern Europe, Southeast Asia, Sumatra, some islands of Japan, and in parts of Africa and South America. They are not naturally found in most Eurasia, where a number of species of hares are present. Rabbits first entered South America relatively recently, as part of the Great American Interchange. Much of the continent has just one species of rabbit, the tapeti, while most of South America's southern cone is without rabbits. \n

From the text, we know that...

- A:) the rabbit is a natural animal in Eurasia
- B:) the number of rabbits in the world is limited
- C:) rabbits are small mammals found in all over the world
- D:) the population of the Amami rabbit is going to be extinct
- E:) a number of species of hares are not found in most of Eurasia
