Opportunities with JSPG:

- Publication opportunities - submit your science policy research to our standard or special issue deadlines throughout the year.
- Writing workshops and webinars - attend events to learn from science policy experts and practice your writing skills in preparation for submission. Each issue has a separate page for events on our website, so check that out too.
- Editorial board - our editorial board is composed of early career researchers looking to build their skills in science policy writing and editing.
- Ambassador program - we offer ambassador opportunities for students interested in science policy and are currently running a pilot program.
- Science policy & advocacy certificate program - learn key concepts and develop practical skills in science policy and advocacy, and network with policy professionals.
- Opportunities for published authors - we highlight published work through speaking opportunities and conference panels, in addition to media outreach and you can watch these events on our YouTube channel.
- Podcast - we interview published authors, to provide another medium for them to share more about their publications and reach an extended audience in science policy.
