4	3	2	1
Consistent striving for personal best in language arts.	Reasonably consistent effort but not to a "personal best" level	Inconsistent effort (may be enough to maintain the grade you want)	Little effort

What is one thing you'd like to continue OR do differently in 7th grade (last chance)?

Something I would like to do differently in 7th grade is to try harder than I already am. I try to do my best but sometimes it fails.

Thought/"Motto" for rest of year -
No pain no game.

LANGUAGE
Do you study for roots quizzes outside of class? Sometimes at home.

How do your quiz scores in IC reflect both your time studying AND your knowledge of Greek & Latin roots and stems?
My root quiz scores show that I am doing a good job with trying to keep up with studying and learning new Greek and Latin words.

How would your teacher(s) describe your engagement in the Patterns of Power daily warm-up?
Highlight the ones that apply to you.

I'm ready to go when class starts	I still need reminders to open the POP doc and get started.	My POP DOC is somewhat complete.	I am a leader in class and I like to raise my hand and share extra ideas about the mentor text.
My POP DOC is complete because I always try to write like the mentor text	I do not usually like to share my work on the padlet.	I like to put my ideas on the padlet	My Pop Doc is really not complete.

WRITING -
Name at least three specific things you learned about writing from writing assignments this year

1. I learned how to write a draft, instead of just writing one piece of work
2. I learned how to write a well thought out poem for the Humaness project
3. I learned multiple different greek and latin root words

What was difficult for you as a writer this year?
Something that was difficult for me this year was writing a crummy draft for the first time because it felt hard to get thoughts out on a computer when you couldn't put them in words.

What did you learn from the struggle?
I learned that having a first draft is helpful because to have a good final draft, you need a piece of writing that describes what you were thinking, and having the final version of a crummy draft makes it look cleaner and thought out.

READING
What have you learned about the following by doing Quote & Comment assignments?

Keep going until you finish reading section and see the word SUBMIT.
