

STALKER CAUGHT GREEN HANDED.

Boy scales beanstalk to burgle treasured belongings

During the early hours of Monday morning, the alleged burglar, who we now know to be Jack, made his way up to the castle of the giant and stole gold, animals and other valuable items. Due to the young boy's bad behaviour (well known in the area for upsetting his mother), the crime against the giant's castle is thought to be a direct result of his lack of respect for the property of others. The deranged delinquent is believed to be roaming in the Honeypot woods. Police are still unclear whether he is working alone on this crime or with his mother.

Have you seen any unusual activity in your neighbourhood? Do you keep your valuables under lock and key? Noticed large plants appear suddenly? Pets disappeared?

Heard it on the grapevine

Mrs Poor, 47 year old widow and mother of Jack, explained how hard this has been on her. "He's a good boy, you know. This is just another example of police victimisation. Leave our family alone."

During our interview, the severity of the crime was echoed by Sergeant Tony Woods. "It was brought to our attention that a burglary took place at the castle somewhere between 5am and 7am on Monday morning. I can confirm we have launched an investigation to find a small boy, last seen carrying an axe heading, towards the other side of the town. The suspect is not to be approached as he is considered dangerous.

Once upon a times view

Since 2012 there has been a 32% increase in serious crimes in Fairy Tale Land. Some of the despicable crimes that have been on the increase are; stolen animals, theft of precious metals and possession of banned weapons. The equilibrium of our Fairy Tale community (especially on the east side of the forest) has been seriously disrupted since this young criminal has been on the loose.

The way forward

We seriously suggest that the woodland social services centre need to increase their counselling for distressed Fairy Tale residents who are disturbed at night by the amount of crimes that are occurring late at night. It is crucial that communities come together to protect themselves against these hate crimes. Loitering jobs are becoming an increased problem on our street and something needs to be done before these thugs take over!

It is strongly advised that you do not plant any seeds that have not been authorised by the council as these seem to be at the root of criminal activity. If you see a shoeless boy brandishing an axe please contact the police immediately.

Who's been Twittering?

@TommyMarket@OnceUponATimes Youngsters in our community R running riot. I know this lad & he is always on money making schemes- he sold a cow last week!

@GiantsWife@OnceUponATimes We are devastated. My husband has been crying all night. He's had that goose since he was 15!

@GreenGiant@Onceuponatimes I am so angry! The police best get hold of him before I do!

Enraged giant is getting ready to come down the beanstalk and wreak his revenge.
