*Marketing Managers

Marketing managers are in charge of promoting our organization's website and social media pages, posts, podcast channel, as well as any project we host. It is highly preferred that marketing managers have large social circles and have experience in marketing research. They are required to have good interpersonal skills. This is not a paid position, but we can provide service hours.

*Event Coordinators

The event coordinators are responsible for searching possible venues for upcoming events. The event coordinators collaborate with other members of the team to plan event details, such as the activities involved, as well as contact venue owners. Event coordinators must be organized, dedicated, have good communication skills, and be thoughtful. This is not a paid position, but we can provide service hours.

Graphic Designers

Graphic designers are the individuals responsible for designing IG posts and creating posters. During events, graphic designers take photographs and edit them to post on our blog, website, and social media. Our graphic designers need to be creative and thoughtful, and are experienced in using designing softwares such as Canva. This is not a paid position, but we can provide service hours.

Website Designers

Website designers must have experience in using website creation softwares such as Wix.com. They will be responsible for creating the layout of our website to make it more appealing for both our target audience and possible sponsors. This is not a paid position, but we can provide service hours.

*Writers

Our writers must have a strong passion for creative script writing. The writers work individually or as a group, depending on the circumstances, so they must have good communication skills. Writers are responsible for posting blogs on our website (after events) and writing scripts for our podcast channel. This is not a paid position, but we can provide service hours.

Voice Actors

Voice actors/actresses read scripts prepared by our writers in a passionate and affectionate voice. This is not a paid position, but we can provide service hours. To know whether or not you are fit for this role, consider the voiceovers for these youtube channels:

Researchers

Researchers are extremely difficult jobs as they are responsible for researching contents for our social media posts and podcast episodes. Our researchers do not have to be super knowledgeable, but they must be open and willing to learn new concepts. Researchers are also responsible for updating other team members on current news and proposing potential topic ideas, for example, the theme of our next event. This is not a paid position, but we can provide service hours.
