Abstract

Abstract is written in one paragraph containing the objectives, methods, and findings of the research; written using Georgia font size 11 with a maximum of 100-150 words.

Keyword: consists of 3 or 5 words, does not have to be a single word, written in lower case, and not an abbreviation. Written in Indonesian and English to suit the abstract.

INTRODUCTION

Manuscript length is 4,000 to 7,000 words, excluding charts, images/photos, and references/bibliography. Written in MS-Word format, 1.15 spacing, using Georgia font size 11.

Articles are the results of research. The introduction is an introduction that contains the background, objectives and benefits or contributions of the research, hypothesis (for qualitative research) and literature review (previous research findings, theories/concepts used). The novelty of the research needs to be emphasized in the article. All of these elements are not divided into sub-chapters except the hypothesis.

Articles can be written in Indonesian or English, and words originating from foreign languages or regional languages are printed in italics.

The citation technique refers to APA Style 7. An example of writing a quotation in a manuscript using body notes is as follows (Wang, 2012) for one author; (Wang & Liu, 2011) for two authors; (Wang et al., 2012) for three or more authors.

METHOD

This section contains a description of the methods used in the research including scientific characteristics, materials, tools, location, research time, research nature, data collection techniques, and data analysis. All of these elements are not divided into sub-chapters, and need to be explained in detail.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

Contains an explanation of the results of the research carried out and a discussion according to the methods used in the research.

The results of the analysis presented in the form of tables or diagrams do not need to be narrated again, but as a tool to help narrate the discussion. In conducting the discussion, the author must dialogue with theories or findings of previous research. The author also needs to emphasize the implications of the research, both in testing or developing theories or practical implications.

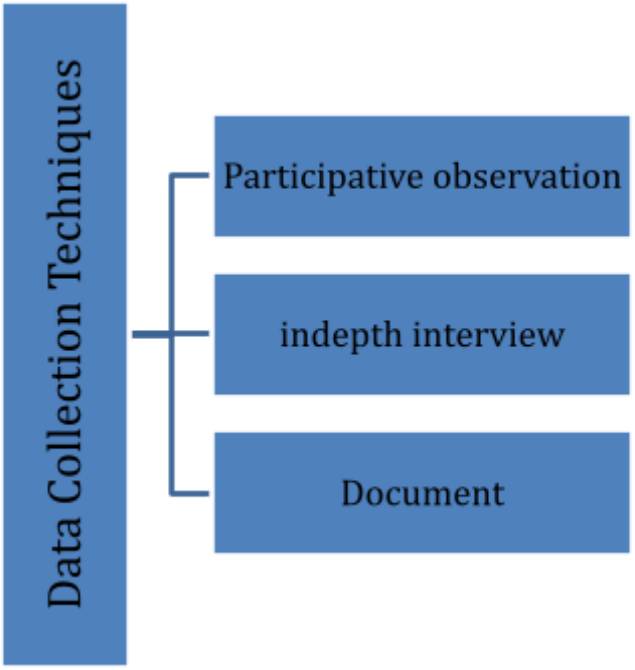

If the article includes images, the image title and source must be included (see example). The title is in italics. Images must be high resolution/HD.

The illustration in the form of a table uses a table with three horizontal rows, without vertical lines, numbered sequentially according to the order of presentation (Table 1, etc.). The table number and title are placed in a left-aligned position.
