PERSONALITY:

She used to be very timid well mannered before her first encounter with Nnoitra and a bit after as well, However as she increased in strength and power so did her over confidence and childish behavior she was often the first to head straight into a fight without much thought as she was convinced she could handle her own particularly well without the help of others. In combat she seems to enjoy ticking off her enemies and attempting to throw them off by throwing the occasional flirtatious comment before throwing a surprise attack.

BACKSTORY:

Born into a life of constant torment Pippa was one of the few female arrancars used as an object more than anything else, Having to fetch food for the men whom would often beaten and use her for their benefits alone. When food was brought back to the campsite she was given a small fraction of what she had caught for them compared to the hefty amount of adjuchas flesh they alone were allowed to feast upon. Life was always this terrible for the female before she was unintentionally rescued by a mysterious numerous by the name of Nnoitra Gilga, Unfortunately for her he had no intentions of keeping her alive seeing as he hated women much like most men had in Hueco Mundo he was quick to slaughter the men that held her captive and whether she knew it or not she too would join them soon enough, However the little fear she felt when he raised his blade to cut down the smaller arrancar fascinated him enough to spare her pathetic existence so instead he left her stranded all by her lonesome to face the cold harsh world that was Hueco Mundo.

There was a new king, His name was Aizen and he reigned supreme his word was absolute everyone knew to obey his every command, It wasn't long until Arrancar's of every variety was being wrangled up in order to serve under the man named Aizen, Knowing that this was the only way to really thrive in this God forsaken world she was quick to jump at the very chance to become a numerous that way she might even be lucky enough to be granted with her very own Rank, Training vigorously until she had reached her first rank being engraved just below her bellybutton it was her very own numerous fourteen she was on her very way of being possibly taken under the wing of a much stronger and wiser Espada.

COMBAT:

It is known that Pippa possesses a zanpakutō, but she relies nearly exclusively on hand to hand combat and flash steps. However Pippa keeps her twin Daggers concealed within her cleavage it often causes her Opponents shock and embarrassment when fishing them out which only increases her chances of delivering a surprise attack.
