Last year my Instagram account was hacked, I still don't know who could have hacked it but after many attempts, even my friends were helping me, we were able to recover it again, but after a minute they took it away from me again. I was angry all day but at night when I got home I saw a video on YouTube and I was able to recover my Instagram profile. Luckily it has not happened to me again and I hope it never happens again.

If something similar happens to you, you can ask me for help and I will try to help you whenever I can.

Nearly 6 months ago, I don't remember exactly when this happened, I was talking to my friend and using her laptop when she logged into Instagram using her id and her password. A few days later, she noticed that someone was using her account and, fortunately, we found out that a hacker took her data. Finally, she got again her account and we were so happy. I recommend that everyone be sure of the websites they use so nothing will happen to them.

Two years ago, I experienced identity theft on Instagram. I was sleeping and I woke up to hundreds of messages from my friends telling me that someone had created a fake account and they were posing as me, using my photos to earn money. In the end I managed to report it and have that account deleted.
