

Rocks and Feathers Essay DST 101:

Deaf people are a Culture of their own. No other culture is the same as them. In a way they are very similar to rock. Yes, rocks. Now Deaf people are very much underestimated. They are also very beautiful, inside and out. You can also find them all over the world. Rocks have all those same qualities. There are many similarities between the two groups that are very surprising.

Deaf people can do anything. They can make beautiful art that shows their historic oppression. Rocks are the same in that matter. Rocks are used to make beautiful sculptures of famous historic events. Deaf people are very strong, and can withstand anything you throw at them. Rock are most definitely strong. They can hold a lot of weight and be used to hold up building. Going off of that note rocks can be a foundation to that said building. Deaf people are the foundation of sign Language and many other amazing things. Another similarity they share is there are three basic types of each group. For the Deaf community they have Big D Deaf, little d deaf, hard-of-hearing. For rocks they have Igneous, Metamorphic, and Sedimentary. People underestimate rocks and Deaf people. People walk over both groups every day. People go to the beach and skip rocks. People have group conversations in the presence of a Deaf person and they say i'll tell you later. These both throw that people don't care about rocks or Deaf people. Both these examples express how Deaf people get overlooked, and how rocks get taken advantage of. So much history come from rock formations. Deaf people also have so much history behind them.

One other connection between the Deaf and rocks is they are both beautiful. Rocks often have a hidden set of cristal inside the rocks. Some rocks may not look pretty from the outside, but all that matters is they are gorgeous within. Same goes for Deaf people are all beautiful on the inside as well, because being Deaf is beautiful. Deaf people look like you're average hearing person, but they are beautifully different. They also have their Language which is of course very beautiful as well. They can come in different sizes as well. Rocks can be the size of mountains, or they could be as small as a pebble, but in the end they are still rocks. . Deaf being could be really short, tall, big or small, but they all are Deaf. Rocks can be symbols too. Many people use rocks in their pockets to keep them calm, or tranquil, and so on. Deaf people are a very tranquil group. Being in a group of DEaf people it is very quiet, and very laid back. Deaf people are very open with their life, so many Deaf people don't get uncomfortable.

So many Rocks are out there in the world. You can find hundreds of different types of rocks. You can also find these rocks not just in America, but all over the world. Same goes for the Deaf. Deaf people exist in every country, and every sliver of the earth. You can find a Deaf person in every city you go to. Rocks can also be found in every city, and town. The earth is made of of rock. Since rocks form the earth that means plate tectonics are big chunks of rocks in one big piece. Since they broke off, and are now separate they are still groups of rocks, but just more spread out. Deaf people experienced a similar incident. Martha's Vineyard was solely Deaf at one point int time. Later the Deaf community spread out to other parts of Massachusetts and beyond. In the end they were all still Deaf, but just more spread out.

Rocks are not the same as Deaf people, but they do have many similarities. Deaf people get stepped on and taken advantage off, and so do rocks. Deaf people and rocks are both beautiful, and can come in many different shapes and sizes. Rocks and Deaf people also can be found all over the globe. They can be different, but in the end they are all rocks, and they are all Deaf people.
