

Southernpiece

Auction Catalog

Fixed price of 12,000,000 J

A helpful companion for anyone not too familiar with the various antiques and oddities available at the auction, as well as for those with insatiable curiosity.

2nd Century Bejeweled Southern Orthodox Crucifix

Starting Bid of 175,000,000 J

Forged of pure silver and inlaid with rubies and bloodstone, this is from an era of ornate and godly craftsmanship. Recently acquired from a private collector, this beautiful cultural artifact of Southern Grundelheim is at the center of a major controversy this year. Several officials of the Ecumenical Synod of Grundelheim, including the outspoken Anglan Bishop Archibald Pope, have claimed that the piece is a stolen master work that ought to be returned to the Church. Southernpiece has actually banned the network of religious fanatics, as well as any proxies, from participating in the auction this year due to a clear history of burning historical artifacts they deem “heretical”.

Staff of the Yul Lich

Starting Bid of 150,000,000 J

This petrified wooden staff is 2 meters long with a black quartz skull fixed to the top end. The artifact dates back to classical antiquity where Yul now stands. The center of a bizarre online conspiracy about a contemporary “Necromancer,” the staff itself has attracted quite a bit of popular attention. Collectors haven’t shown nearly the same enthusiasm, hence its relatively modest valuation.

Masuya-kai Ledgers

Starting Bid of 260,000,000 J

A collection of documents detailing all forms of business for the recently wiped out Masuya-kai family. Thought to be what an alleged victim used to build a case against them, before both them and the detective working the case disappeared into thin air. Some say there is more to the ledgers than what they were being used for, while some take the fact it's being sold at an auction as proof there's nothing more to it. The ascendant Zukibirudo-kai family has made no comment either way about the item.

Ben's Knife #222

Starting Bid of 200,000,000 J

This late-era Ben’s Knife has a delicate, wavy shape that splits into two prongs halfway down the length of it. It is said to induce hallucinations after a wound. These knives used to be a niche collection item, but a recent interest in the strange curios has driven their prices quite high. Unfortunately, this has also led to a reluctance on the part of owners to sell just yet- they expect higher prices later on- so only one is available for auction this year.

Property rights to the Dalwa ZL3

Starting Bid of 450,000,000 J

A document stating ownership over the Dalwa ZL3, the still unrecovered zeppelin lost somewhere in the Swirling Straits. Many believe the previous owner to be Kakin royalty, implying there could be money to be made. Others are convinced it was used in Hunter Association business, with a slew of possible secrets to unfold. Still, no one knows much about it nor how exactly it came to be sold at the auction.

Muloti Loyalty Band

Starting Bid of 180,000,000 J

A small iron ring bearing a clear crystal affixed to its center. The color of the crystal remains clear until the ring is worn, and subsequently changes depending on the wearer's mood. Historians theorized this type of ring to be a wedding gift for high ranking members of a lost civilization.

Bottled Star

Starting Bid of 210,000,000 J

This delicate glass bottle is uniquely shaped like a sphere covered in shallow spikes. The milky white liquid in it is luminescent, and fog swirls about the bottle. Much like the name implies, it is said to be a star fragment, found in Southern Yorbia 98 years ago and expertly melted into the spectacle it is.

Underground

Skinned & Mounted Irezumi Skull Tattoo

Starting Bid of 300,000,000 J

This work of art on human canvas was stripped off the back of a wayward member of the Zumibirudo-kai family who was feeding information to outside parties (You know who you are!) Kumicho-sama has so generously offered the remains to the many collectors of this sort of curio among the many families. If you focus long enough on the hollow eyes of the skull, they almost appear to look back into your own.

Young Hunters' Framed Photograph

Starting Bid of 320,000,000 J

A well preserved picture taken some 40 or 50 years ago, depicting four young Hunters. Baltazar Legrand, Achraf Esgardé and two more, standing on the shore, sporting a fatigued smile. Recent events are drawing more and more attention to this item, causing the price to rise accordingly.

Mikaela Amira Fight Tapes

Starting Bid of 200,000,000 J

Recorded in secret two years ago during the final match of Battle Olympia, this tape has on it illicit footage of the reigning champion's combat style, ability, and techniques.

Mellified Toe of a Young Scribe

Starting Bid of 130,000,000 J

A human toe preserved in honey, this artifact is from the Green-Lace region, and dates back nearly two millennia. These kinds of artifacts are prized by collectors of the human body, but are also famed for their supposed ability to aid in recovery from grave wounds.

Camp Tiger Cub

Starting Bid of 180,000,000 J

A live specimen of the increasingly rare Camp Tiger species, not even a full year old. This cub is one of a rapidly dwindling number of Camp Tigers, which have recently become quite popular for sport hunters and for their horns, which are valuable in the medicinal trade.

Asudan Bonded-Servant

Starting Bid of 110,000,000 J

This young girl was raised and trained as a servant in a syndicate-managed orphanage in Asuda, specifically to be put to auction. Taught to cook, clean, keep records, and keep herself presentable, the servant is also exceptionally loyal.

Bira Sapling

Starting Bid of 290,000,000 J

A still growing specimen of the infamous Bira tree, the main ingredient in the production of a number of psychedelic substances. While the item itself is a coveted one, prices are lowering due to the lack of bidders in the past years.
