[Everyone, wideview shot]

Hi, we're JPEG!

[RenRan, walking]

This summer, we're organizing Ottawa's first all-girls game jam at Carleton University.

July 5-6, you'll have 25 hours to build a game with a team of three.

[Haya, above shot]

Everything is free — meals, drinks, and cool merch like T-Shirts and plush!

[Jocelyn, walking]

All you need is a laptop, charger, toiletries, and a sleeping bag.

[Erin, popping up behind a tree]

So, what is a game jam?

Our game jam is an overnight coding slumber party where you build a game based on a photo shown at the venue.

[Jocelyn, on the grass]

It could be a visual novel, puzzle game, platformer, or anything else.

Know any artists? Bring them along!

[Sophia, walking shot]

We're beginner-friendly — we'll have workshops and experienced mentors to help.

We're affiliated with Hack Club, a global nonprofit that creates awesome programs like a hackathon on a train [video cut] and one where you build the stupidest project possible.

[RenRan, walking]

What are you waiting for? Sign up now through jpeg.hackclub.com or the QR code here,

[Everyone]

See you there!