

DeFi stands for decentralized finance, which means that no central authority can access and manage them, because information about them is distributed on several computers and cannot be changed only on one of them (changed block will not be validated).