

Fosnero original Species [W.I.P.]

By Ozlo Fox

About

The fosnero's name is derived from the greek words, Fos (meaning light), and Nero (meaning water).

The fosnero is a mix between a cat, a fish and a hedgehog.

It has the anatomy of a cat. It has fins on top of the head, the sides of the head, back, lower arms, and tail tip. The quills are located on the back of the head, and back.

It also has a glowing bioluminescent pattern all over its body.

(this pattern is usually a series of spirals that branch off all over its body this is different for the Deep Sea variant of the Fosnero where the spirals are more angled)
