

Name: Aztani

Nickname: The Friend Shaped

Quote: Gullible is written on the ceiling, er, floor

Quote Maker: Someone walking in a hallway only to realize their aztani friend isn't on the same surface as them

Stats: (5, 2, 8, 2, 6, 3)

Common Jobs: Counselor, Xeno-sciences

Likes: Aliens, Aesthetics, Politics, The Humanities

Dislikes: Scaring off new friends, needless violence, tragedy

Attack Style: Stings from tentacles and suffocating constriction. Once the target is knocked out restrain them, or euthanize by snapping vital joints. If violence is avoidable they negotiate.

Homeplanet: Momaoat

Lifespan: Until Killed

Height: 7-9ft

Diet: Junk Food, Fish, Plants, Fruit

Class: Middle Class

Rarity: Very Common

Green Trait name / info: [Wall Walker] - They actually can write gullible on the ceiling

Blue name/info: [Affectionate] - Misery loves company

Red name/info: [Thrillseeker] - The universe is a contact sport, they say

Info about gods: They prefer the gods of aliens.

Patrons: Eros, Gackpoid, Min, Poseidon, Priapus, Sutekh, VY2

List of Gods: Varies.

Creator name: It's me Loverlan :V

Physical: The Aztani have been described as eldritch horrors from beneath the waves. The typical features are anywhere from 2 to 8 eyes (stalks or not), a gaping maw, and markings that blend into the scenery. They tend to have anywhere from 2 to 8 tentacles. They tend to have a lower body like that of a nudibranch or a terriete in posture/structure.

Behavior: The Aztani are easiest described as xeno-fanatics in any fashion. Studied conducted concluded that they have a predisposition to enamourment with aliens whether it comes to culture, biology, sociology, or even something simple as aesthetics. They do not like conflict due to both their history and the inability to see things they like be hurt. Their fascination with aliens can sometimes cause them to hyper-fixate on an individual or species, and actually harm relationships.

While they were a powerful predator most are extremely gentle.

History: There were a lot of wars within their pre-history, and the result produced a world of people who would rather sacrifice their own well-being if it meant another could survive. They had not expected to make first contact, but when they did their entire planet rejoiced.

Home Planet: The planet has a fairly low population these days due to the exodus that came from first contact, although almost all members of the species retain full or partial citizenship. The local government attempts to make several efforts per year to ensure the species continues rather than everyone producing hybrids.

Subspecies Name: Deep Terrors. They live in the true abyss, and often surround themselves in ink clouds to obscure themselves even better. Most members of the species who leave the planet move about in mech suits centered around an orb they shelter themselves in until they can go back to residing in their abyss-like tank. Very few have ever seen the face of one, but most remark that it was something of pearlescent horror.

Subspecies Name: Terrestrial. After successive offworld generations a variant without the same hydration needs has come about. They can be more easily compared to salamanders, as would their kind be called axolotls. They're considered to be more rubbery, and while friendly they are more passive about their fixations.

Trivia: Some believe the tweekers were the first to make contact due to the prevalence for politics enjoyment in this species.

Trivia: A lot of people scream in terror the first time they meet an aztani. This is usually because it involves something charging at them.

Trivia: Aztani can change their sex with a fair bit of ease over the course of a month. Due to the nature of their sex chromosomes and characteristics being an enigma it has been commonly said by this species that "straight people don't exist" with respect to their own species.