SPM CEFR READING PAPER WORKSHEET 6

10 puppies were found dumped outside our office building in Taman Saling. All are males. We have put them in a cage and given them water and food. Unfortunately, we are unable to keep them for long since it's a office building. We don't have any caretakers for them. So if there are anyone or any pet centers interested to adopt them, please kindly call us at Riala 01456789990. Thank you.

1) According to the short text we know that

A the puppies are abandon

B the puppies are left unattended at the office building

C the puppies are open for adoption.

Just up the road from my condominium, there is a pet care center. Every weekend, I will pay a visit there. There is one kitten that is blind and looks really different from all the other cats in the center. The kitten was taken from the streets and it's a rare breed. The caretaker really loves this rare kitten and named it Julan. It is placed in a special cage and even being taught how to move around . The kitten is being trained to listen to sounds and alert with movements.

2) The text above shows that

A the kitten is a wild kitten

B the author is a pet lover

C the kitten is rare and well taken cared

Recycling is a process of managing the waste we produce and turning them into something new or useful in order to minimize pollution which damages our environment. By disposing our waste into the rubbish bins, we are not actually disposing the waste for good. We are actually just putting our waste out of sight.
Adapted from: chapter 4: It is all starts at home SIRI PBS MESRA

3) Based on the text recycling means

A turning our waste into a new product

B reusing back an old waste
C keeping our waste out of sight

Summer Rain

The worst days of any summer are the rainy ones. We spend all year looking forward to nice weather and long, hot days. All of winter, with its dreary gray days and bitter cold, we dream of those endless days at the beach, laying on the sand and soaking in the bright and burning sun. And then, summer comes, and it rains.

As a child, I would wake up to rainy summer days and come close to crying. It wasn't fair. We suffered through months of school and miserable weather for those scant ten weeks of freedom and balmy weather. Any day that I could not spend at the beach or playing ball with my friends seemed like a punishment for something I didn't even do.

On those rainy summer days, I had nothing fun to do and could only sit inside, staring out at the rain like a Dickensian orphan. I was an only child, so there was no one else to play with. My father worked from home, so I was not truly alone, but he could not actively play with me since he was technically at work. It was those days that I would resign myself to whatever was on television or any books that I could find lying around. I'd crawl through the day and pray each night that the rain would not be there the next day.

As an adult, though, my opinion of summer rain has changed. When you have to work every day, summer is not as eagerly anticipated. Mostly, the days run together, bleeding into each other so that they no longer seem like separate entities and instead feel like continuations of the same long day. Everything seems monotonous and dull, and an ennui or listlessness kicks in. Such a mindset makes you cheer for anything new or different. I spend the winter dreaming of summer and the summer dreaming of winter. When summer comes, I complain about how hot it is. And then I look forward to the rain, because the rain brings with it a cold front, which offers a reprieve—admittedly one that is all too short—from the torture of 100° and humid days. Rainy days are still the worst days of the summer, but summer rain today means positively beautiful—and considerably cooler—weather tomorrow.
