

Undergraduate Research Opportunities

Some of the research opportunities below are broad in their eligibility requirements, some are specifically for folks with particular identities, some are for folks historically, systemically and structurally excluded from research. Links often break so there are no links included, but search engines should bring up the appropriate site! Deadlines to apply span throughout the year. Be sure to read eligibility criteria and application guidelines carefully and connect directly with the professor, researcher, or organization to clarify questions you might have about the application or the process of applying.

The list provided below certainly is not exhaustive! Additional helpful places to locate research opportunities include:

- VolunteerWR volunteer listings <https://volunteerwr.ca/>
- the faculty website under which your department is housed
- the program website of your department
- asking the academic coordinator in your department
- asking professors in your department
- asking professors in research institutes or labs affiliated with your department
- hospital-based research programs
- health charities based research programs
- community-based groups that conduct research
 - climateactionwr <https://climateactionwr.ca/>
 - cyclewr <https://cyclewr.ca/>
 - engagewr <https://www.engagewr.ca/>
 - lovemyhood <https://www.lovemyhood.ca/en/index.aspx>

- citizen committees and boards
