Introduction to the School Counseling Program

Mission and Philosophy

The Master of Science in Education (MSEd) in School Counseling (SC) degree is designed to rigorously prepare graduates for work in a variety of school settings, including public, parochial and private elementary, middle, and high schools. The program emphasizes knowledge basic to all school counseling settings, including competence in individual, group, and career counseling, program development and evaluation and, assessment. Sensitivity to gender, cultural differences and similarities, and social justice is fostered, and ethical decision-making skills are developed.

The philosophy of the MSEd program in School Counseling at Fordham University is consistent with many of the historical traditions in counseling, including an appreciation of the uniqueness of the individual, a belief in the unbounded potential of each human being, and a respect for the integrity of all persons. The philosophy of training is growth-based in that it focuses on students' strengths and potentials with respect to their personal and professional development. Furthermore, while students receive training from diverse theoretical and clinical perspectives, they are encouraged to take a growth-based approach to school counseling, emphasizing the development of the student as a unique human being within a socio-cultural context.

More specifically, the SC program closely operates on a reflective-practitioner model in preparing graduates who will manifest the highest standards of excellence in all school settings. Throughout the program, we emphasize an integration of theory and professional practice through attention to didactic and experiential learning, synthesizing skill acquisition with an in-depth understanding of oneself, and clarifying personal and professional identities. This reflective stance implies the following assumptions:

- (a) learning and development are synonymous with self-direction, which is superior to either of the extremes of trial-and-error or exclusive reliance on authority as methods for governing one's development and learning;
- (b) learning is an ongoing process and, as a result, the student has the responsibility to keep cognizant of issues and trends within the profession;
- (c) learning occurs in a context that requires a consideration of individual differences and systemic factors;
- (d) learning is enhanced when considered within the context of multicultural perspectives; and
- (e) professional development is often inseparable from personal growth.

The mission of the program is thus to provide students with ample opportunities in a supportive and stimulating environment where they can solidify their strengths, take risks, be exposed to culturally diverse perspectives, and develop new competencies in various roles associated with school counseling. Consequently, we provide extensive coursework as well as a wide range of learning opportunities in many areas relevant to the counseling profession. The program, however, is also sensitive and responsive to the experiences of entering students and their diverse professional goals, allowing students flexibility in tailoring the program to meet their unique training needs.

Upon admission into the program, each student meets with their advisor to decide on an appropriate course load that best fits their personal needs. The student and their advisor will discuss course sequencing, timeline of practicum and internship, and other logistical needs.

Fordham also provides a student counseling center where students have the option of receiving free confidential counseling for personal concerns. Additionally, all students have free access to the Office of Career Planning.

Objectives

The objectives that follow from the reflective-practitioner model are presented below:

Objective 1: To prepare professional school counselors that are knowledgeable and competent in the areas of individual counseling, human development, career counseling, assessment, group counseling, multicultural counseling, program development and evaluation, research methods, developmental disorders, and ethics.

Objective 2: To develop ethical decision-makers in the role of professional school counselor.

- a) Students utilize supervision and training experiences to develop clinical skills and maintain ethical standards.

Objective 3: To develop school counseling professionals, who are sensitive to and competent in treating diverse populations.

- a) Students acknowledge and behave with a consideration for their students', colleagues', and others' identities—treating all people with respect and dignity.
- b) Students incorporate self-reflection and awareness into their professional identity.
- c) Students approach their practice and coursework with consideration of social justice issues, differing worldviews, and varied cultural perspectives.

Objective 4: To develop professional identities as school counselors with an ongoing commitment to evidence-based practice.

- a) Students remain abreast of scientific knowledge and emerging literature in professional journals and publications.
- b) Students are knowledgeable about the ASCA National Model for School Counselors.

MPCAC Accreditation

The School Counseling Master's Program is accredited by the Master's in Psychology and Counseling Accreditation Council (MPCAC) for the period of 2015 through 2025. The MPCAC's mission is to accredit academic programs in psychology and counseling, which provide training in the scientific practice of psychology and counseling at the master's levels. MPCAC stresses a commitment to science-based training and culturally responsive services.

MPCAC objectives are detailed below:

- To promote master's level preparation in the practice of scientifically-based, culturally responsive counseling and psychological services that promote the public interest of all people.
- To promote the integration of science and practice as a goal for practitioners working in the areas of counseling and psychological services.
- To encourage academic programs to conduct continuing review, evaluation, and improvement of their education and training, utilizing measurable outcome criteria.
- To encourage flexibility through experimentation and innovation in the design and implementation of training programs.
- To cooperate with other agencies and organizations in promoting education and training in the practice of master's level counseling and psychological services.
- To provide accreditation for training programs in counseling and psychological services which can be viewed by professional and regulatory bodies, as well as the public, as an indicator of quality preparation.

The MPCAC standards for accreditation are guidelines for the preparation of master's level scientist-practitioners in the counseling profession. The department faculty is required to undergo a self-study, consisting of an evaluation of the program against each standard as outlined by the MPCAC, in preparation for a site visit to receive accreditation. MPCAC accreditation facilitates the connection of faculty across disciplines, emphasizes cultural competency, endorses strength-based helping strategies, and supports social justice training. This accreditation is a testament to the quality of training within the program.

The MPCAC standards for accreditation (2024) are as follows:

1. The program is identifiable as educating counseling and psychological service practitioners, using evidence-based counseling and psychological principles and theories as they apply to specific populations and settings. This is defined primarily through the coursework, field work, and disciplinary affiliations of those who teach in and administer the program.
2. The program is the equivalent of at least two academic years of full-time study and 60 credits (or the equivalent quarter credits), which includes the supervised field placement as described in #3 below.
3. The program includes significant supervised field placement, a minimum of 600 hours across at least two semesters with 240 direct client contact hours.
4. The coursework in the program emphasizes the science-based education and training model, which includes the use of current scholarly and research literature to inform practice. The aim is to produce graduates who are scientifically-minded and who remain current in their fields, translating current scholarship and multicultural/diversity knowledge and awareness into practice. The program reflects a commitment to recognizing varying degrees of applicability of such knowledge and skills to specific populations and settings.
5. The program curriculum provides adequate coverage of each of the standards described below:

- a. Ethical and professional standards
- b. Evidence-based theories and practice of counseling and psychotherapy
- c. Multiculturalism and diversity
- d. Theories of psychopathology and relevant classification systems
- e. Methods of evaluation of individuals
- f. Research methods
- g. Career development and/or the role of work in peoples' lives
- h. Biological basis of behavior
- i. Developmental basis of behavior
- j. Systems basis of behavior

Division of Psychological and Educational Services (PES)

The SC Program is housed in the Division of Psychological and Educational Services (PES) within the Graduate School of Education. PES offers a variety of programs in four major areas: mental health counseling, school counseling (MSEd), counseling psychology (PhD), educational psychology (MSEd and PhD), and school psychology (Adv Certificates and PhD). The counseling and school psychology doctoral programs are fully APA accredited.

Admission and Retention Requirements

- 1) To be admitted to the MSEd program in school counseling, an individual must have a bachelor's degree, an average GPA of 3.0, and evidence of professional promise (personal, interpersonal, and intellectual characteristics appropriate to the profession and the ability to communicate effectively). Applications to the program require all undergraduate transcripts, two letters of recommendation, and a personal statement of the candidate's preparedness and readiness to pursue intense counseling training.
- 2) In order to successfully complete the program, Master's degree students must maintain at least a B average (3.00) across coursework, receive satisfactory field experience (internship) evaluations from both the supervisor on-site- and the campus supervisor; and must pass the comprehensive examinations.
- 3) If a student appears to demonstrate difficulty in completing the program, faculty develop a collaborative plan with stakeholders and engage the student in addressing areas of concern, as outlined in the formal student performance review and remediation process (Appendix F).

Faculty

At present, the full-time core faculty of the counseling programs consists of six Counseling Psychologists, one Developmental Psychologist, and one Clinical Coordinator. The faculty holds expertise in the practice and research of mental health and school counseling. Our School Counseling Program has a reflective-practitioner and practitioner-scientist orientation, which we anchor in multicultural perspectives and ethical practice. As such, the faculty is involved as practitioners, researchers, supervisors, and consultants in counseling.

Collectively, the core faculty speaks a total of five languages; they have published more than 20 books and over 230 peer-reviewed journal articles and book chapters. Their primary interest is in teaching and supervising the practice of counseling and psychology. Students are also invited to work on research teams of faculty throughout the PES Division.

In addition to the core program faculty, SC students have regular access to faculty in our sister program, school psychology, as well as potential exposure to faculty in the clinical psychology program (Graduate Arts and Sciences) and other programs housed in the Graduate School of Education. All professors in the Division of Psychological and Educational Services are available to work with SC students. Adjunct faculty members teaching in the school counseling program are usually highly skilled practitioners from the metropolitan area, with invaluable experience working in local school districts.

Pointers to Facilitate Progress Toward Program Completion

Stay on top of key dates! The Graduate School of Education Bulletin's online Academic Calendar includes important deadlines and dates like Spring Recess, holidays, comprehensive exams, and registration periods. To avoid any last-minute stress, we recommend marking these important dates in your personal calendar at the beginning of each semester.

Registration reminders: Remember to register for all Fall and Spring semesters, from the time you start the program until you graduate. If you're not planning to take any courses during a particular semester, you must maintain your enrollment status by registering for EDGE 0666 (Maintenance of Matriculation).

Connect with your advisor! We recommend regularly checking in with your advisor. They're a valuable resource and can offer guidance and support throughout your program.

Expand your professional network! Consider joining professional organizations like the American School Counseling Association (ASCA) and the American Counseling Association (ACA) as a student member. These organizations can help you develop your professional identity outside of the university setting.

Students must demonstrate knowledge in a second language education state-administered exam. Please note this is different than a language proficiency exam and it is important to take the required coursework prior to taking the exam. See Blackboard for instructions on the process of adding the bilingual extension.

Fieldwork in School Counseling

Students are required to obtain their own practicum and internship sites. Listings of placements and evaluations of the placements by students who have completed field work at the sites, are available on Blackboard.

If a student would prefer doing a practicum or internship at a site where Fordham has never sent students, the student must complete the New Site Form found on Blackboard and contact the Director of Field-Based Experience and Accountability (Liz Casey, ELCasey@Fordham.edu) to get permission to apply to that site.

Each winter the Director of Field-Based Experience and Accountability holds an orientation meeting to discuss policies and procedures. The Memorandum of Agreement outlines the requirements for the Field Experience as well as the responsibilities of the University and the Supervisor at the School (Appendix A). An agreement is required for both the elementary and secondary school settings and must be signed by all parties.

Students will keep a log of their internship hours. Signed hours logs will be submitted at the end of each semester.

Liability Insurance

Students will be covered under Fordham University's liability insurance policy throughout the course of their program. The insurance fee is billed upon entry to the program. This is a mandatory fee, given it will cover a student as a professional at the field site. Students are also strongly encouraged to obtain their own personal policy through organizations such as the American Counseling Association or the American School Counselor Association.

Balancing Life Responsibilities

While attending classes while working and balancing other life responsibilities is possible, please note the following:

- Fall and Spring semester classes typically begin at 4:50pm. Class times run from 4:50pm-6:50pm & 7:00pm-9:00pm.
- Summer Session I schedules often follow a similar late afternoon/evening format.
- Summer Session II may require more daytime courses.
- The 600-hour internship requires in-person work at a school for 2.5 days per week, demanding a flexible schedule.

Fingerprinting

According to New York State Guidelines, all candidates for School Counseling certification must be cleared by the New York State Education Department through a fingerprint-supported criminal history background check. This is often required prior to practicum in order to work in the school. Current cost of fingerprinting is approximately $103, this is subject to change.

Fingerprinting processing can be done in number of ways, including:

1. Students may connect with IdentiGo, a federal service provider, to process fingerprints. Students who use this option will need to transfer their fingerprints from New York State to New York City; the steps for this process can be found on Blackboard. Fingerprints from this method may appear on the student's TEACH account as "FBI Clearance."
2. Students may reach out to Liz Casey to process fingerprints through the NYCDOE Personnel Eligibility Tracking System (PETS). Students using this method will need to remain in contact with Liz Casey to communicate when they have scheduled their appointment and when they have completed fingerprinting. This approach allows the fingerprinting results to show up directly in the student's TEACH account. If you are interested in using this method for fingerprinting prior to SJ Practicum, please reach out to Liz Casey by November 1st.
- 3.

Social Justice Practicum

Description

In the Spring semester of their first year in the program (2nd year, if going part-time), students will apply their counseling skills and knowledge in a K-12 school setting (elementary, middle, or high school). The school must be in significant need of services because it is under-resourced, serves a student population where the majority of students receive free or reduced lunch, and/or is identified as one of New York City's high need schools.

Under the supervision of the course instructor and the onsite supervisor, students will work to apply the ASCA National Model in their practicum. Aligned with the MPCAC Standards, these field placement experiences will focus on issues related to the promotion of mental health, human development, wellness, cultural competence, and social justice advocacy. During class, students will continue practicing counseling skills in dyads and small groups.

State guidelines for practicum include: a minimum of 40 clock hours of direct student contact in group counseling, individual counseling and school counseling core curriculum lesson delivery; and a minimum of 60 clock hours on developing, implementing and evaluating key school counseling program elements such as: student outcomes and standards, curriculum, individual student needs and plans, responsive services, consultation with others on behalf of student, time management, school counseling program goals, data analysis, action plans, calendars/schedules, advisory panels, councils, and committees.

Students must have a field site prior to starting the course, and all field sites must have departmental approval. Liz Casey, the Director of Field-Based Experience and Accountability will assist you in securing your site.

Supervision

Students receive university-based supervision via enrollment in the Social Justice Practicum course, which is taken in conjunction with the 100-hour practicum. Site supervision should be provided by a permanently certified school counselor, who will provide weekly supervision, and ensure that students complete the 100 hours of practical experience.

A Fordham University professor will be in direct contact with the site supervisor (certified school counselor) to make sure that protocols regarding field experience expectation are being met. Students are responsible for having their site supervisors complete midterm and end of term evaluations. These evaluations must be signed by the site supervisor and submitted to the professor

School Counseling Internship

Description

In the Fall semester of their final year in the program, students will apply their counseling skills and knowledge in both K-8 and 9-12 school settings. As with the practicum experience, these field placements will focus on issues related to the promotion of mental health, human development, wellness, cultural competence, and social justice advocacy. During class, students will discuss clinical issues and continue to grow their counseling skills.

State guidelines for internship include: a minimum of 300 total clock hours per site, with 120 clock hours of direct student contact in group counseling, individual counseling and school counseling core curriculum lesson delivery; and a minimum of minimum 1hr per week face-to-face supervision under a Certified School Counselor. The indirect clock hours may include developing, implementing and evaluating key school counseling program elements such as: student outcomes and standards, curriculum, individual student needs and plans, responsive services, consultation with others on behalf of student, time management, school counseling program goals, data analysis, action plans, calendars/schedules, advisory panels, councils, and committees.

Students must have a field site prior to starting the internship course, and all field sites must have departmental approval.

Selecting Your Site

Students are assisted in obtaining their field placements. To help in the selection process, student evaluations of sites are available electronically and shared with students at the beginning of the process. A current list of sites is posted in Google Drive. Students are also welcome to find sites on their own. In this case, Liz Casey should be contacted to assure that it will be an appropriate site for internship.

When selecting sites, students should begin to think about his/her ultimate career goal (where do you envision yourself when you finish the MSED degree? what kind of position would bring you the most happiness and satisfaction?). By thinking about these questions, talking to classmates, more advanced students, and/or faculty advisors, students can begin to figure out what fieldwork placements will be most useful in helping achieve these goals.

Some questions for a student to consider when starting the search include: In what type of site are you interested in ultimately working? What population would you prefer to work with in terms of gender, age, socio-economic status, urban vs. suburban vs. rural? What types of services do you want to provide – career counseling, psychotherapy, assessment? What is your orientation to therapy or counseling?

It is also important to consider the type of supervision experience that a site will offer. Do you feel comfortable with your potential supervisor? What orientation do they practice? How available are they for consultation outside of your regularly scheduled supervision?

During the process of thinking about these questions, students should begin reviewing the files, doing research online, and speaking to more advanced graduate students as well as to your faculty advisor. After narrowing down a selection of sites, begin contacting them to see if there are positions available.

It is extremely important to prepare a good cover letter, resume or curriculum vitae and a good idea to have 2/3 references in mind to provide to schools. Students can contact Fordham's Career Office for assistance in preparing these. Most sites prefer students send these materials in advance of being called in for an interview. The interview process is one in which students can get the best feel for the site and supervisor. It is strongly recommended that students "shop around" for a site that is a good match with their educational and career goals. The student should ask the interviewer questions that will provide a good idea of what it would be like to work at the site. While the site is interviewing a student, the student should also be interviewing the site to make sure it is a place that will provide an excellent learning experience. It is also helpful for students to talk to current interns to see what their experience has been like.

Site Supervisor Qualifications

A site supervisor must be committed to giving a minimum of 1 hour of face to face supervision per week. This person must have permanent certification in the field of school counseling and should have three years of experience as a counselor or therapist. For students pursuing the Bilingual School Counseling track, the supervisor must be a permanently certified Bilingual School Counselor.

At the end of a student's field experience the supervisor will receive a letter with the procedures for applying one course, tuition-free. Supervisors do not receive monetary compensation, rather they are granted one free course per semester. This offer is time-limited and must be used within one year. The tuition remission must be used by the supervisor on record and is not transferable.

Securing Your Sites

Once a student has considered all options and selected their sites, a meeting with the future site supervisors needs to take place to review and sign the Memorandum of Agreement. The information on sites that a student selects also needs to be reviewed in a meeting with the faculty advisor and/or Director of Field-Based Experience and Accountability, Liz Casey. The completed Memorandum of Agreements should be submitted NO LATER than May 1st.

Students should discuss practicum and internship opportunities with their program advisors and Liz Casey prior to applying to these fieldwork experiences and enrolling in the associated courses. In addition to getting the Memorandum of Agreement signed, students must keep a log of their hours.

Recommended Timeline

- Advising for the Fall semester begins at the end of March
- By April all students should have a site lined up to begin their internship in the Fall semester. This involves interviewing at sites, narrowing down options, and accepting an offer. When an offer is accepted, the memorandum of agreement should be signed by the site supervisor.
- BY MAY 1st all Memorandums Of Agreement must be completed and submitted via Blackboard. Agreements will be signed by Liz Casey, Director of Field-Based Experience and Accountability to finalize the contract.
- All students participating in internship during the Fall semester must register for PSGE 6652.
- If a student has any questions or concerns about this timeline or the fieldwork requirements or procedure, please contact Liz Casey, Director of Field-Based Experience and Accountability. Students should not wait until the end of the semester to address any questions or concerns, as it puts chances of finding a field experience site for that Fall in jeopardy.

Comprehensive Examinations

The comprehensive exam is usually offered two times a year, once in February and once in May. The exam typically runs from 10am to 2pm. The comprehensive examination presents a case vignette and requires responses to questions on applications of theoretical and counseling approaches; ethical, legal, developmental, assessment, and multicultural issues; and group counseling considerations in conceptualizing and designing an intervention plan specifically relevant to the case vignette.

Students should review all areas of coursework (e.g., group counseling, career counseling, assessment and diagnosis, human development, etc.) because they are required to integrate knowledge gleaned from these separate courses.

Only students who have completed all required courses or are completing the final semester of required courses may be eligible to take the comprehensive examination. If this eligibility requirement is not met when students take the examination, the examination results will be invalid. All students must register for Comprehensive Examinations (PSGE 0705) during the registration period. Should a student register to take the exam but decide not to sit for it, the student must drop PSGE 0705.

If a student decides to take the comprehensive exam during a Spring or summer semester when no other coursework is taken, they must also register for EDGE 0666 (Maintenance of Matriculation).

Past exam questions are on electronic reserve in PES Central. These can be found within PES Central by clicking on “Documents” in the left-side panel, then clicking on School Counseling Program Documents.

The program faculty offers each year orientation to the comprehensive examination so that students may receive study tips and ask questions regarding the comprehensive examination process. Please also see Appendix I on frequently asked questions regarding this examination.

School Counselor Certification

The 60-credit MEd program in School Counseling is approved and registered with the Department of Education in the State of New York. Upon graduating from the program, students are able to apply for their Initial School Counselor certificate.

The Fordham Scene

Although Fordham at Lincoln Center is in the center of Manhattan, the program and the Graduate School of Education is relatively small. This contributes to a friendly, supportive, and caring atmosphere. Evidence for this supportive environment is given by the fact that roughly 95% of the students who begin the program complete it in a timely fashion. The University encourages students to take advantage of the wealth of resources in the city. At the same time, Fordham seeks to develop an environment where students can feel part of a community.

GSE for Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI)

Fordham University's Graduate School of Education is committed to preparing educators, school leaders, counselors, and psychologists to promote social change and equity while serving all individuals in inclusive learning and therapeutic environments.

Our graduates are professionals who implement an asset-based perspective that recognizes the cultural wealth that children and clients bring to education and counseling, their individual strengths and needs, and the systemic challenges and opportunities that affect their experiences in schools and the community.

GSE's campus community affirms and celebrates the identity of every individual. We are committed to a continuous process of acknowledging and dismantling racism and other forms of oppression and discrimination that cause systemic inequity. We likewise are committed to justice-focused, equity-driven, and culturally-sustaining practices that lead to improved learning opportunities and better social and mental health outcomes for individuals in all communities.

Graduate Assistantships

The Financial Aid Office reaches out to students every year with information on how to apply for a graduate assistantship position for the following academic year. Specific requirements for the position are shared in the email such as:

- Complete FAFSA for specific school year and demonstrate financial need via FAFSA
- Maintain a 3.5 GPA or higher
- Must be enrolled in minimum 6-9 credits for Summer Semester and 9-12 credits for Fall/Spring Semesters

To apply, students complete an online application listing their credits per semester, interest in GA position, and other information. Students must reapply each year for an assistantship position.

UNIVERSITY GRIEVANCE PROCEDURES

POLICY:

It is the policy of Fordham University to protect the rights of each student to be free from unlawful discrimination. Students who believe they have been discriminated against with respect to participation in, access to, or benefits of any program or activity within the Graduate School of Education are advised to file a grievance. For additional information, write or call the associate dean for academic affairs or the chairperson of the division in which the program is offered.

INFORMAL PROCEDURE:

Since a formal grievance procedure is a last resort, it is assumed that every effort to resolve the grievance through informal approaches has been conducted by the concerned parties. Nevertheless, the use of informal procedures is not a prerequisite for the submission of the grievance through the formal procedure.

FORMAL PROCEDURE:

Write or call the associate dean for academic affairs or the chairperson of the division in which the program is offered.

For more information please refer to the GSE Bulletin:

STUDENT PERFORMANCE REVIEW AND REMEDIATION POLICY

Goals/Purpose

As our students pursue pathways in the mental health field and work directly with clients in different capacities, our program has a dual responsibility to provide our students with the training they need to be ethically minded and culturally competent mental health professionals and to protect future clients and the psychological profession. As such, our students must possess the knowledge, skills, awareness, and dispositions that are required of the program as aligned with the professional standards of the American Psychological Association, the American Counseling Association, and the Master's in Psychology and Counseling Accreditation Council \(MPCAC\).

Below we describe the performance review and remediation process, which includes specific steps that are taken when the faculty is made aware of a significant concern related to a student's academic progress, interpersonal/intrapersonal skills/awareness, or professional attitudes and behaviors. Most student concerns do not rise to the level that would warrant a Student Performance Review and Remediation Process as students regularly meet with their advisors and the program faculty routinely evaluate students in the program.

The student performance review and remediation process are activated in the following circumstances: (1) the program is made aware of significant concerns related to the student's performance at a field placement site or (2) an instructor or multiple instructors are made aware of the student's difficulty in successfully meeting the minimum standards in the areas of academic progress, interpersonal/intrapersonal skills/awareness, or professional attitudes and behaviors.

The steps in the Student Performance Review and Remediation Process include:

1. The student's advisor will present the student's specific concern to the Counseling Program Faculty during an executive session meeting. The Counseling Program faculty will discuss and develop an action plan that will identify the faculty member(s) responsible for developing the performance review and remediation plan and timeline. This action plan will be voted on during the executive session and recorded in the minutes.
0. In consultation with any parties involved (e.g., student of concern, student's clinical site supervisor, instructor), the student's advisor will develop a specific remediation plan with a suggested timeline and will present that plan to the Program Faculty during an executive session for a vote. If approved, the student's advisor will contact and make an appointment with the student to discuss the remediation plan and provide the remediation plan in writing. The remediation plan will include a timeframe, usually no longer than sixty (60) days, for successful completion by the student. If not approved, the student's advisor will edit the remediation plan according to program faculty feedback and present the updated plan to the Program Faculty during an executive session for a vote.
0. Upon completion of the steps in the remediation plan, the student will meet with their advisor to review his/her/their progress. If all the objectives in the remediation plan are sufficiently met, the student's advisor will alert the student that he/she/they are no longer in need of remediation. If, however, the student fails to comply with either the steps in the remediation plan or does not complete the steps within the timeframe, the student's advisor will consult with the program faculty before meeting with the student regarding his/her/their failure to complete the plan.

0. During an executive meeting of the faculty, the student's failure to complete the remediation plan will be carefully discussed. If necessary, the Division Chair as well as other relevant parties (e.g., security, legal, Dean's office) may be consulted. The faculty will then decide to either create an alternative remediation plan or follow the process to formally dismiss the student from the program. If an alternative remediation plan is created, students will be provided this documentation.
0. It is possible that an extension of time will be granted to the student. If the student fails to comply with the plan, despite supportive efforts (e.g., timeline extension), the program faculty will meet to discuss the student's possible dismissal from the program.

It is important to note that this Remediation and Review Policy is not intended to replace or supersede actions that may be taken against a student by Fordham University, for unsatisfactory academic progress or violations of the student code of conduct.

The GSE Bulletin outlines the academic policies and procedures that govern student retention and dismissal. Students are also expected to adhere to all university policies, as described in detail in the Fordham University Student Handbook, which is provided as a resource and reference guide to University operations, academic policies and regulations. Additional information is available on University policies, Residential Life policies, and academic policies in the Undergraduate Bulletin.

including the University Code of Conduct policies on nondiscrimination and sexual harassment prevention, and the policy on Academic Integrity. Furthermore, students matriculated in the Counseling and Counseling Psychology Programs are expected to make satisfactory progress in requirements for professional as well as academic performance (as outlined above, regarding Annual Student Progress Reviews).

GSE Student Rights and Due Process

Student Grievance Procedures: The academic policies and procedures cited above include due process for students, should they believe that their rights have been violated. The GSE Student Grievance Procedures (Appendix N) is available from the Office of the Associate Dean or online.

The school counseling master's degree coursework consists of 60 credits as outlined below. Most courses are offered as six-credit modules; more specifically the following pairs of courses must be taken concurrently (shown in boxes): PSGE 5620 with 5622; PSGE 5630 with 5632; PSGE 6630 with 6632; PSGE 6640 with 6642; and PSGE 6655 with 6652. It is also suggested, but not required that PSGE 6602 be taken with PSGE 6607. Finally, PSGE 5620 must be taken as a pre-requisite to PSGE 5630, PSGE 6640, and PSGE 6630. The remaining courses can be taken at the student's scheduling convenience.

The first Internship course (PSGE 6652) may be taken only after students have completed the following 10 courses: PSGE 5620, 5622, 5630, 5632, 6602, 6607, 6630, 6632, 6640, and 6642. In order to be competent to successfully engage in the Internship, students must complete courses in individual, group, and career counseling, as well as have foundational knowledge of human development and assessment. If students begin the Field Experience course without completing these required courses, they may be terminated from the program. Please note that the field experience must begin in the Fall semester.

COMPREHENSIVE EXAMINATION: FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS

1. At what point, in the master's program, is one eligible to sit for the comprehensive examination?

Only students who have completed all required courses or are completing the final semester of required courses may be eligible to take the comprehensive examination. If this eligibility requirement is not met when students take the examination, the examination results will be invalid.

2. When and how are students expected to register for the master's comprehensive examination?

The examination is offered 2 times a year (in February and May). All students must register for the comprehensive examination, PSGE 0705, MSE COMPS COUNSELING.

EXAMINATION STRUCTURE & ADMINISTRATION

3. Please describe the way in which the comprehensive examination is constructed.

The comprehensive examination typically presents a case vignette and requires responses to questions on applications of theoretical and counseling approaches (e.g., a theory of counseling, career development, psychosocial development, and/or group process); ethical, legal, and multicultural issues; and/or measurement considerations in conceptualizing and designing an intervention plan specifically relevant to the case vignette.

4. How is the comprehensive examination administered to master's students?

The comprehensive examination is typically given on the first Friday in the spring semester (February) and in the first summer session (May; specific dates may be located on the Graduate School of Education's Academic Calendar).

It is a 4-hour examination that starts promptly at 10:00 AM and ends promptly at 2:00 PM.

The exam is held on campus in computer labs and all students are required to take the exam at an assigned computer station and adhere to computer lab rules (e.g., no food or drinks allowed). Alternative arrangements may be approved in advance only for students with (a) qualifying health conditions, and (b) if a written request and documentation of the qualifying health condition is submitted to the Coordinator of Comprehensive Examinations during the week of registration preceding the semester that the student intends to take the examination.

All students are expected to adhere to the ethical principles of the American Counseling Association, as well as to maintain the highest academic standards of Fordham University. Academic integrity and honesty should be reflected in students' responses to the exam. It is expected that all students familiarize themselves with the Fordham University policy on academic dishonesty.

PREPARATION FOR EXAMINATION

5. When should students begin preparing for the comprehensive examination?

It has been suggested that students anticipating taking the comprehensive examination should begin preparation at least 6 to 8 weeks prior to the date of the examination. Furthermore, it has been suggested that students should spend approximately 6 to 10 hours a week preparing for this exam.

6. How have students in the past prepared for this examination?

Students in the past have made several helpful suggestions for those who are preparing for the master's comprehensive examination. They are as follows:

- Form a study group with your peers. Students have found that a group was extremely helpful in fostering a close network of peers to explore ideas about possible topics that might be on the comprehensive examination. Groups that met regularly have helped provide structure and direction to students while preparing for this examination. Students were able to share ideas and strategies, identify and review critical topics, and critique each other's writing. Furthermore, students have found that a peer study group provided a place for emotional support and encouragement.
- Review old comprehensive examinations (previously 2 parts; now combined in 1) that have been provided through eRes (see below), and practice completing a timed "mock examination."
- Familiarize yourself with 2 main individual counseling theories and approaches, 2 career development theories and counseling approaches, 2 psychosocial developmental theories, and group counseling processes.
- Familiarize yourself with the various types of reliability and validity in educational and psychological measurement.
- Review ethical, legal, and multicultural issues in counseling.
- Familiarize yourself with main topics and concepts covered in each of the counseling course modules.

7. Are there past examinations available in the library or on-line?

Yes, students can access copies of past master's comprehensive examinations on PES Central by clicking on "Documents" in the left-side panel, then clicking on School Counseling Program Documents.

GRADING

8. How is the master's comprehensive examination graded? Who are the graders?

Student examinations are blind-reviewed (i.e., no names are used; only identifying numbers) by an anonymous faculty member. If the initial grader deems the examination insufficient (that is, warrants a FAILING grade), then the examination will be evaluated by a second grader. If both graders conclude that the student receive a FAILING grade, then the student will receive that grade on their transcript for that examination and must re-take the examination the next time it is offered.

9. What is considered to be a passing/failing grade?

Each of the student's responses is evaluated on a 4-point scale (1 = Unacceptable, 2 = Marginal, 3 = Satisfactory, 4 = Excellent) in relation to the accuracy, clarity and comprehensiveness of the response to the specific questions. An examination grade of 3 and above is passing; 2.5-2.99 warrants revision; and 2.49 and below is a failure.

10. What is the procedure if a revision is warranted?

If a revision is warranted - students will meet with their advisor to discuss the reviewer's comments and make a revision plan. Revisions are due to the student's advisor within 1 week.

11. If students fail the examination on their first attempt, will they have the opportunity to revise their responses to the examination until they receive a passing grade?

Students who receive a failing grade on their first attempt at the course examination will be given the opportunity to re-take the exam (not the same exam) in the subsequent semester. If students fail the exam on the second attempt, their academic standing will be reviewed and they may be terminated from the program.

12. What are the implications of a student who has passed the master's comprehensive examination?

The comprehensive examination provides an impetus for students to integrate their knowledge base across educational and training experiences, as well as move beyond minimal competencies toward a solid professional identity as a professional counselor. Passing the exam is a requirement to obtain one's degree.

SCHOOL COUNSELING

100-hour Social Justice Practicum

Program:

Fordham University's School Counseling master's program is a 60-credit program, which includes a 600-hour Field Experience (School Counseling Internship), and 100-hour Social Justice Practicum. The School Counseling program emphasizes knowledge basic to all school counseling settings. Sensitivity to gender and cultural differences and similarities is fostered, social justice advocacy is encouraged and ethical decision-making skills are developed. Graduates of the program are eligible for School Counseling Certification in New York State.

Social Justice 100-hour Practicum Description

Students will apply their counseling skills and knowledge in a K-12 school setting (elementary, middle, or high school). The school must be in significant need of services because it is under-resourced, serves a student population where the majority of students receive free or reduced lunch and/or is identified as one of New York City's high need schools.

Under the supervision of the course instructor and the onsite supervisor, students will work to apply the ASCA National Model in their practicum. Aligned with the MCAC Standards, these field placement experiences will focus on issues related to the promotion of mental health, human development, wellness, cultural competence, and social justice advocacy. During class, students will continue practicing counseling skills in dyads and small groups.

State guidelines for practicum include: a minimum of 40 clock hours of direct student contact in group counseling, individual counseling and school counseling core curriculum lesson delivery; and a minimum of 60 clock hours on developing, implementing and evaluating key school counseling program elements such as: student outcomes and standards, curriculum, individual student needs and plans, responsive services, consultation with others on behalf of student, time management, school counseling program goals, data analysis, action plans, calendars/schedules, advisory panels, councils, and committees.

Students must have a field site prior to starting the course, and all field sites must have departmental approval.

Supervision:

Students receive university-based supervision via enrollment in the Social Justice Pre-Practicum course, which is taken in conjunction with the 100-hour practicum. Site supervision should be provided by a permanently certified school counselor, who will provide weekly supervision, and ensure that students complete the 100 hours of practical experience.

A Fordham University professor will be in direct contact with the site supervisor (certified school counselor) to make sure that protocols regarding field experience expectation are being met. Students are responsible for having their site supervisors complete midterm and end of term evaluations. These evaluations must be signed by the site supervisor and submitted to the professor.

To show our appreciation for your participation, supervisors will receive a voucher for a 3-credit course free of charge to be used within that year.

SCHOOL COUNSELING

Internship

Program:

Fordham University's School Counseling masters program is comprised of 60 course credits, which includes a 600 hour internship. 300 internship hours must be completed in the elementary grades (K-8) and 300 hours completed in the secondary grades (9-12). The School Counseling program emphasizes knowledge basic to all school counseling settings. Sensitivity to gender and cultural differences and similarities is fostered and ethical decision making skills are developed. Graduates of the program are eligible for School Counseling Certification in New York State.

Eligibility for Internship:

Students are required to take Introduction to Counseling I and II modules, the Group Counseling module, the Career Counseling module, Human Development, and Assessment in Counseling before beginning their internship. This foundation prepares students to successfully intern in a variety of school settings, including public, parochial and private elementary, middle, and high schools. Internships begin in the fall semester, typically at the start of a student's second year in the program.

Matriculated students of the school counseling program are provided professional liability insurance coverage.

Supervision:

Students receive University Supervision through their school counseling field experience classes, which are taken in conjunction with the internship.

Site supervision should be provided by an individual holding permanent certification in the field of school counseling. The Site Supervisor is required to: arrange for the student to provide counseling to 3-4 clients a week; provide opportunities for students to engage in a variety of school counseling activities; conduct or arrange for a minimum of 1 hour of face-to-face supervision per week for the student; and complete an on-line student evaluation form at the end of each semester.

To show our appreciation for your participation, supervisors will receive a voucher for a 3-credit course free of charge.
