

Samuel (sammy to his close friends) a proud warrior from the western kingdom, a trusted soldier to the king of these lands.

Samuel comes off as a reckless meathead, however he is very effective in battle. Using his immense strength and heavy blade to slay the wild monsters who dare try and invade.

Though he is seen as a destructive giant by the neighboring towns, those at the castle know him well. Samuel is actually a very friendly and relaxed guy when not in a battle or training, the man could take a nap anywhere and sleep soundly. And is incredibly loyal to his friends. Which leads to his main reason for leaving the kingdom and joining up with William and Victoria.

Some time ago, an invader arrived at the castle during his guard duty. Samuel recalled the man as the royal advisor to the northern kingdom's queen, having accompanied his king to royal meet ups before. He had no idea why this mage was here, all he knew is this scum had murdered many of his fellow soldiers, His Brothers! He would not let this vile man live for these crimes.

But, at the current time he simply was no match for the mage. Samuel always had a disadvantage against magic users. He couldn't land a single hit cause of that cheap teleportation trick! And he was overwhelmed by offensive spells and the mage assumed he was dead. Leaving as too many people have noticed him and didn't find what he was looking for.

As soon as Samuel was capable of moving and carry his blade he set off, he would claim that mage's head even if it killed him. His brothers must be avenged, and he needs to find ways to work around magic users, this journey also serves as training to further improve his skills as a warrior

He soon met up with William and Victoria on his journeys

Apparently they were captured by some invading beastmen, he too cause they jumped him while he was sleeping to recover from training.

Normally he could handle one or two by himself but this town was full of em so he listened to the rogue and stuck to sneaking out but made note to return and free this town from beastmen control.

Sticking with them cause Victoria is a huge target for the northern kingdom

So sticking with these two means more enemy mages will attack and give him the training he needs.

Though over time, he was starting to warm up to them both, seeing them as more as friends. And he will not let what happened to his brothers happen to his friends, becoming the team's wall to ensure their safety.
