

Community care is radical is anti-capital is survival

because if you fall in you'll fucking drown! / because the floor is fucking cold! / compassion is radical when the dominant norm is to not give two and a half shits about the world or the people around you / compassion is survival like a boat at sea is survival / the continuing of life through the waves and the wind / compassion is radical like a bed is radical / two people sleeping in one bed / because the floor is cold and hard and it hurts your back and makes you sick and kills you eventually / two people sleeping in one bed because it's winter and they love each other / even though they're told not to love each other / because love doesn't generate profit or capital / love can't be commodified / survival can't be commodified / they're singing, can you hear?
