Abstract (Times New Roman, 9 pt, single spacing, 150–200 words)

The abstract must be written as a single paragraph (150–200 words) using clear, concise academic language. It should briefly present the background problem, program objectives, approach or methods (e.g., participatory, mentoring, or community-based intervention), key results, and measurable impact or practical implications for community empowerment or applied knowledge. Avoid citations, excessive abbreviations, symbols, trade names, or information not discussed in the manuscript. Define acronyms at first mention if necessary.

Introduction (Times New Roman, 10 pt, single spacing)

This section explains the community's background and the problems it faces, supported by relevant scholarly references. The introduction should justify the importance of the community service or applied intervention program and its relevance to existing knowledge or best practices. Clearly describe the state of the art and the program's contribution. Manuscripts typically range between 3,000 and 5,000 words (excluding references, tables, and figures). Submissions outside this range may be considered based on the scope, depth, and contribution of the study.

Method

This section describes the community engagement or empowerment approach adopted in the program, including the characteristics of the community partners involved, the stages of implementation, the materials or tools used, and the procedures for evaluating program outcomes and impact. The methodological description should clearly explain how the intervention was designed, implemented, and assessed to ensure transparency, accountability, and replicability of the community service initiative. [font Times New Roman, 10, Normal].

Results and Discussion

Results and discussion should be presented in one integrated section. This section explains the implementation outcomes of the community engagement or empowerment program, including analysis of results, challenges encountered, and interpretation of findings in relation to relevant theories, prior studies, or best practices. Authors are encouraged to highlight the intervention's measurable impact, community response, and sustainability aspects.

Tables and figures should be placed close to the relevant discussion and must be clearly labeled and numbered consecutively using Arabic numerals (Table 1, Figure 1, etc.). Table titles should appear above the table, while figure captions should be placed below the figure. Equations may be included when relevant and should be numbered consecutively using Arabic numerals in parentheses aligned to the right.

Equations are included only when relevant to the applied community service model. Example equation on the right-hand side of the page (Eq. 1).

Conclusions

This section summarizes the main outcomes, impacts, and practical implications of the community service activities. Authors may also include recommendations for sustainability, future development, or policy implications.

Acknowledgment (if any)

Acknowledgments may be addressed to individuals, institutions, community partners, or organizations that contributed to the program's implementation.

Funding Statement

Clearly state the source of funding or indicate if the study received no specific funding.

Author Contribution

Describe the contribution of each author to the study.

Research Ethics and Informed Consent

State whether ethics review was required. If approval or a formal exemption was obtained, identify the issuing body and provide the reference number and date, where available. If review was not required, explain why. Describe how informed consent was obtained for participation or use of participant data, as applicable. If consent was waived or not required, explain why. Data Availability Statement

State where and under what conditions readers can access the data and materials supporting the findings. Provide a repository link or persistent identifier, where available. If access is restricted, explain why and describe any permitted access procedure. If no datasets were generated or analyzed, state this explicitly.

Declaration of Generative AI Use

Disclose any use of generative AI in manuscript preparation beyond straightforward language correction, editing, or formatting. Identify the tool and explain how and why it was used. If there is no use to disclose, write "The authors declare that no generative AI use requiring disclosure occurred in the preparation of this manuscript."
