

Kenda Culpepper, Rockwall District Attorney-

Rockwall County's 389th District court has held the 10th (tenth) due diligence hearing on my case, cause 02-06-16. This is my 8th notification to the Rockwall courts and District Attorney's office. A warrant for my arrest was issued almost 6 years ago and I remain a fugitive. A year and a half ago I went public with documented police perjury, falsified documents and the withheld evidence by the District Attorney's Office.

The Rockwall DA's office has a rich history of corruption, including Galen Sumrow's conviction of theft by a public servant and from Wikipedia:

“Louis William "Bill" Conradt, Jr. (January 30, 1950 – November 5, 2006) was a district attorney in Texas. He became inextricably linked to Dateline NBC's To Catch a Predator, a TV series which conducted sting operations against suspected sexual predators. Local law enforcement conducted a sting operation that identified Conradt as a suspect and Dateline cameras recorded the events that followed. Conradt fatally shot himself upon encountering SWAT team members that were serving an arrest warrant at his home.”

William “Bill” Conradt Jr. represented the State of Texas in my case. Do you think he grew a halo at work?

The DPS officers illegally entered my parked car, claim plain view, falsified the police report and both perjured themselves under oath in a pretrial hearing. Conradt, the District Attorney, refused to turn over the arrest report and withheld the vehicle inventory proving criminal misconduct by the DPS. The DPS were the last folks in my car before said evidence was discovered, the case prosecuted by a suspected child predator who committed suicide. And we are to believe the State's evidence here? See my included open letter to Judge Brett Hall below with State documents referenced.

The prosecutorial misconduct exposed in numerous recent exonerations shows the State of Texas has complete disregard for life, liberty and pursuit of happiness of innocent people and routinely bends the law and ignores the truth for convictions. Without truth there is no justice; the truth trumps everything. Until the State can accept responsibility for their criminal misconduct and take positive action to repair this ugly situation, better to remain a fugitive. Resisting false arrest is perfectly legal. Furthermore, it is not my responsibility as an individual to correct deep systemic State and local flaws demonstrated here.

This case is an indictment against the “war on drugs”. Consider why the government rarely busts a big fish? However the government will bend over backwards, upside down, lie, cheat and break laws to convict here. I say follow the money... I paid big bucks to bail bondsmen, the auto impound yard and attorneys all while I was “presumed” innocent. The police, DA and courts illegally stuck their nose in my life, funded by your tax dollars. In the face of hard evidence, the State plows on, more of an industry, not a war. This is not a smaller, responsible government. Yes, the Rio Grande flows red, white, and the blue is in too, directly or indirectly!

In reality, no one cares about people, only money... The Rockwall city council might be hard pressed to explain a massive preventable federal lawsuit against stubborn officers of the court ignoring the law.

Locally, the press is aware of the situation, bowing to advertising dollars and political pressure by not reporting this. When freedom of the press and freedom of speech are gone, so goes government transparency, accountability, a government of wolves among the sheep...

The ultimate responsibility to correct the situation rests with the State, represented by the District Attorney Kenda Culpepper. Who takes responsibility after the finger pointing within the government is not important. Prosecution is not a buffet, you can't have the pepperoni without the pepper, you can't have the possession without the perjury. Admitting perjury introduces serious doubt about the evidence, officers of the court and the law itself. Selective prosecution doesn't get it.

Unlike the government, I have not asked you to “take my word” or “trust me”. I have only pointed out falsified documents, perjury and withheld evidence detailed by STATE documents. The 10 “due diligence” hearings documented in Rockwall's online judicial records are evidence of impaired integrity, virtue and moral principle, continued corruption in the Rockwall DA's office.
