You wake up in a freefall. You've been dropped onto an island made of ice in the middle of nowhere. You have no memory of how it happened. You're hungry, thirsty and very cold. Equipped with nothing but a lighter you decide to explore the beach, where you find a piece of paper.

"You're not alone here. Follow the rules without cheating, and you just might make it off this island alive."

In front of you are four objects; a stone, a coconut, a banana and a fish.

Choose correctly, and you may be able to pass to the next step.

Which object should you choose?

You hear a noise coming from the forest. Could it be another person? You run to find out. What you find instead is a river. In the water is a woman on the brink of being swept away by the current, as well as a dog and a bag full of provisions.

Who or what do you save?

---

You decide to follow the river to find the bag of provisions. Once at the bottom of the hill, you find yourselves in a cave. Inside you have to choose between four paths; the first is filled with poisonous spiders, the second guarded by an alpha-male gorilla, the third by woolly mammoth, and the fourth leads to a bottomless well.

Which path do you choose?
