ACADEMIC SUMMARY

Ranjita Pandey is a Professor of Statistics at University of Delhi. She has been awarded D.Phil. in 2002 from University of Allahabad. She has received summer research Teacher Fellowship from Indian Academy of Science, Bangalore during the period May-July 2004. She joined as Lecturer at Banasthali Vidyapith, Rajasthan in July 2000 and at University of Delhi as Senior Lecturer in January 2005. She has additionally served in various capacities in about 24 Department Committees and 07 different University level Boards. Her research interest lies in Demography, Financial Statistics, Event Modelling and Bayesian Inference. 07 Ph.D. and 11 M. Phil. degrees have been awarded under her supervision while 05 Ph.D. degrees are under progress. She has 40 Publications in National and International level journals/Edited Books. She has contributed to Syllabus Creation/Revision for about 25 UG and PG courses. She has contributed as Subject expert at various State and National level commissions. She has served as Paper setter, evaluator and dissertation examiner of Graduate and Doctoral courses for various Indian Universities. She has guided various applied researchers from Universities/medical colleges/hospitals/research institutes in statistical analysis of their research data. She is a life member of Indian Bayesian Society and of Indian Society for Probability and Statistics. She has attended 23 National level Trainings, presented 17 conference papers, delivered about 70 Invited Talks at various National academic forums and has organized 04 National level Academic Events. She is recipient of 10 Research Grants.